- Direct the provision, withholding, or withdrawal of health care, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation.
- Donate organs or tissues, authorize an autopsy.
- Approve or disapprove diagnostic tests.
- Accept or reject health care or services, and consent to or decline to authorize continuing care.
- Approve or disapprove health care treatment, psychosurgery, sterilization or abortion.

Date: September 19, 2016

Location: Alliance Behavioral Health
4600 Emperor Blvd.
Durham, NC 27703
Target Audience
This workshop will be highly beneficial to all psychologists, counselors, social workers, mental health professionals and others interested in learning to facilitate Psychiatric Advance Directives.

Program Description
This workshop will review the goals and benefits of Psychiatric Advance Directives and introduce providers to techniques to assist consumers in completing them. Over a one-day period, this training offers several easy learning experiences. It begins with an overview of Psychiatric Advance Directives and includes completion of a PAD by use of a form that guides content entry. Legal considerations and use of the NC advance directive registry will also be addressed.

Objectives
Upon completion of this workshop, participants should be able to:
• Discuss the benefits and potential drawbacks of Psychiatric Advance Directives;
• Review methods to facilitate the completion of Psychiatric Advance Directives; and
• Review and Discuss a Mock Facilitation session.

Faculty
Marvin S. Swartz, M.D., is a professor and head of the Division of Social and Community Psychiatry, who also serves as director of the Duke AHEC Program and director of the National Resource Center on Psychiatric Advance Directives. Dr. Swartz has been extensively involved in research and policy issues related to the organization and care of mentally ill individuals at the state and national level. He was a network member in the MacArthur Foundation Research Network on Mandated Community Treatment, examining use of legal tools to promote recovery mental health treatment. He co-led a North Carolina study examining the effectiveness of Psychiatric Advance Directives and the NIMH funded Clinical Antipsychotics Trials of Intervention Effectiveness study. He is currently a co-investigator of a study of the cost of criminal justice involvement of mentally ill individuals and the effectiveness of gun laws in reducing gun related deaths. Dr. Swartz was the recipient of the 2011 American Public Health Association’s Carl Taube Award and the 2012 American Psychiatric Association’s Senior Scholar, Health Services Research Award for career contributions to mental health services research.

Michele M. Easter, PhD, is a sociologist and senior research associate with the Services Effectiveness Research Program in the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences, Duke University School of Medicine. She served as project director for a study led by Dr. Swartz and Dr. Jeffrey Swanson, in which Psychiatric Advance Directive facilitation was implemented by peer support specialists and non-peer clinicians on six Assertive Community Treatment teams in the triangle area.

Kelsey Klatka, MS, CRC, LPC, received her masters of science in rehabilitation counseling and psychology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She is a licensed professional counselor and a certified rehabilitation counselor. She is currently a mental health specialist at Carolina Outreach in Wake county.

Jeff Neer MSW, CPSS, LCAS-A, received his master of social work from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a licensed clinical addition specialist associate and is currently a peer support specialist with UNC’s Assertive Community Treatment Team with Wake county.

Jacob Schonberg CPSS, is a certified peer support specialist at Carolina Outreach in Durham county.
