My name is Justin McLash and I have been a small animal practitioner since 2005 practicing on the beautiful Sunshine Coast, British Columbia. Recently, I have pivoted away from professional practice life and achieved my goal of completing my MBA and broadening my perspective of what being a veterinarian means to me. In my current role as National Veterinary Medical Director for TELUS Health MyPet, I help the team bring high quality virtual veterinary care to Canadians.

I have a passion for giving back to my professional community. As such, I am thrilled to be a part of the CVBC Council where I provide my own unique insight and perspective. I enjoy my time working on Council and I can see that my passion is shared amongst the entire team. I look forward to new challenges, opportunities, and continuing to advocate for our industry within the province.
