Dr. Doris Leung

Dr. Doris Leung is a veterinarian in Vancouver. Her practice scopes include small animal medicine as well as veterinary public health and epidemiology. Doris was born in Hong Kong and immigrated to Canada at a young age. Doris has experience working in collaboration with racialized and marginalized communities from her previous and current volunteer work in veterinary medicine and social justice, with organizations like Community Veterinary Outreach, Yarrow Intergenerational Society for Justice, Atira Women's Society, and the Canadian Collective for Equity in Veterinary Medicine. Doris is excited to be a part of the CVBC's EDI project advisory group, and hope to support the CVBC towards a veterinary profession that is inclusive and equitable, and that underrepresented communities, including registrants, veterinary staff, and members of the public are supported and valued.
