IPRO QIN-QIO PRESENTS

HEALTH-RELATED SOCIAL NEEDS SERIES

REGISTER NOW!

Addressing health-related social needs (or social drivers of health) can improve health outcomes. Health-related social needs include food insecurity, housing instability, transportation needs, utility difficulties, and interpersonal safety.

Join IPRO QIN-QIO for the Health-Related Social Needs Series to learn, collaborate, share best practices and lessons learned on how best to screen for, capture information about, and address social needs.

- Engage in interactive sessions where participants learn about health-related social needs and specific issues when screening, collecting, and addressing this information.
- Participate in a collaborative forum to share best practices, challenges, and lessons learned, including ways to streamline reporting to CMS.
- Share tools, resources, and other material with your peers.

Six Sessions

12:00 – 12:45 PM ET

September 13 | October 11 | November 8 | December 13 | January 10 | February 14
