CERAH Indigenous Peoples' Health & Aging Workshops

In partnership with Indigenous Services Canada (ISC), First Nations & Inuit Health Branch—Ontario region, Lakehead University's Centre for Education and Research on Aging & Health (CERAH) is pleased to offer travel reimbursements for in-person workshops. These include: two (2) Palliative Care for Frontline Workers in Indigenous Communities workshops and two (2) Learning Essential Approaches to Palliative Care (LEAP) Core Training for Indigenous Communities workshops. The registration poster provides a complete list of locations and dates.

These workshops can accommodate 30 people each. Spots will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Travel Details:

Travel arrangements must be booked and paid for by training participants directly, or by their Indigenous community/organization. This includes flights, mileage, hotels, parking and meals (outside of the workshop). Two nutrition breaks and lunch will be provided at the workshop on both days.

Participants must also book and pay for hotels and incidentals directly or through their Indigenous community/organization.

Travel Grant Reimbursements for staff working in Indigenous communities

Following the workshop, we will be offering a travel grant to cover partial travel costs.

- A maximum amount of $750 per person has been allocated for participants.

Please see the linked invoice template. You must fill out the invoice template and return it to Holly Prince at hprince@lakeheadu.ca following the workshop. The payment will then be mailed to your Indigenous community/organization at the address provided on the invoice.

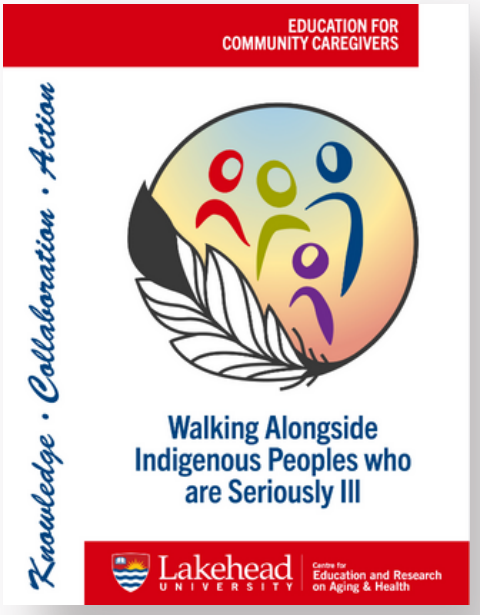
Please note: Travel grant reimbursements will only be provided for people who attend the training. We will not reimburse expenses if a person can no longer attend the training and needs to cancel.

Next Steps:

Registration confirmations will come from Jessica Wyatt, Knowledge Broker at CERAH following the registration deadline for each event.

WALKING ALONGSIDE INDIGENOUS PEOPLES WHO ARE SERIOUSLY ILL: EDUCATION FOR COMMUNITY CAREGIVERS

Walking Alongside Indigenous Peoples Who are Seriously Ill is designed in a train-the-trainer format with step-by-step instructions on how to use and deliver the content. This curriculum empowers health and social care providers with tools and resources for delivering community-based education to families and community members caring for people with a life-limiting illness.



KEY AUDIENCE

- Family or community caregivers who have questions about caregiving or who would benefit from instruction on particular skills at the bedside, or the palliative approach to care, advance care planning, and/or how to make their wishes known
- Health and social care providers joining the team and/or that need some guidance in developing a care plan
