NPWH The National Association of NURSE PRACTITIONERS in WOMEN'S HEALTH

NPWH STUDENT AMBASSADOR PROGRAM

2025

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Women's Health (NPWH) Student Ambassador Program was created to build a national community of women's health nurse practitioner students and to provide those students the opportunity to connect with and learn from expert women's health nurse practitioners and advanced practice providers at our annual national conference.

NPWH Student Ambassadors must maintain an active NPWH student membership and be enrolled in an accredited WHNP program in the United States. By serving as a NPWH Student Ambassador, you will have the extraordinary opportunity to facilitate personal and professional growth through a mentorship relationship that will exchange educational, scholarship, and professional knowledge and experiences.

The mentorship experience should be uplifting, engaging, and rewarding for both the mentor and the mentee. The mentor-mentee relationship is a unique opportunity for self-discovery and to foster professional development.

AMBASSADOR GUIDELINES

- Be able to meet with your mentors at least three times during the NPWH Student Ambassador Program (September through December 2025). Once the NPWH Student Ambassador Program concludes on December 31, 2025, the mentor and mentee may opt to continue the mentor/mentee relationship on their own should both parties wish to do so.
- Be willing to meet via phone, in person, or via video platform. To facilitate ease in meetings, program coordinators will work to match mentors/mentees based on geographic proximity and interests.
- Attend the annual the 28th Annual NPWH Women's Healthcare Conference, October 1-3, 2025, in Las Vegas, NV. You will be granted complimentary conference registration.
- Students must be able to purchase airfare and sleeping accommodations (hotel) to attend the meeting. NPWH will award a $500 grant per student to help with these expenses.
- During your time at the NPWH Conference you will have the opportunity to connect with and learn from expert nurse practitioners in health; gain knowledge of current clinical trends, evidence-based research, and national guidelines to provide care to women of all ages; and network with members of the NPWH Board of Directors and conference attendees.
- You will be invited to the VIP Reception at the annual conference, and attendance is encouraged. It's a great networking opportunity to connect with WHNPs and those in the women's healthcare field.
- Attend an initial conference call, the entire conference, complimentary symposia, an orientation session, and a debrief session. Volunteer your time and be present for all conference sessions you are assigned to; serve as a session assistant/runner; welcome and assist conference attendees; and visit the exhibitors to learn more about their women's healthcare products.
- Post highlights of the conference educational and networking sessions to social media platforms, such as Instagram, LinkedIn, Facebook, and participate in a group NPWH Student Ambassador photo.
