Fostoria Area Historical Society will host Dr. Barry Devine, Assistant Professor of English at Heidelberg University. Dr. Devine will present on John Quinn, a former Fostoria resident who played a key role in modern art and literature. An attorney who was an avid collector and patron of the arts who fought to overturn censorship laws.

At one point in the 1920's he owned the largest single collection of modern European paintings in the world.

The event is free and open to the public. 7 p.m. on October 13 at the Fostoria Learning Center.
