KeraLink International and VOSH/International Partner to Strengthen Global Vision Care

KeraLink International and VOSH/International have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to expand access to eye care and corrective eyewear in underserved communities worldwide.

VOSH/International (Volunteer Optometric Services to Humanity) is a global leader in volunteer-driven vision care, with 122 chapters in 33 countries, including over 50 VOSH and SVOSH chapters in the United States, and it's still growing. For more than 50 years, VOSH chapters have provided free eye exams, screenings, and clinical services to communities in need, focusing on international outreach.

Through this partnership, US VOSH chapters will continue leading clinical service delivery, while KeraLink complements their efforts by ensuring patients have access to the glasses they need and by offering support that strengthens impact. The MOU was designed with growth in mind, allowing new activations to be added as connections are made and projects identified, keeping the collaboration responsive to local needs while planning for the future.

"This MOU recognizes the strengths of both organizations," said Michelle Bockman, President and CEO of KeraLink International. "VOSH's extraordinary volunteer network identifies the need, and KeraLink ensures people can access the glasses that change their lives."

The partnership is already underway. In September, KeraLink provided more than 70 pairs of glasses to Haiti through the VOSH-Pennsylvania Chapter, which has served patients in the region since 2010. Future collaborations will build on this model, connecting more US VOSH chapters with KeraLink's fulfillment resources.

"VOSH International has always believed in the power of partnerships to reach more people with the care they deserve," said Maria Arce-Moreira, Executive Director of VOSH/ International. "This collaboration with KeraLink ensures our patients receive not only exams but also the glasses they need to see clearly."

Together, KeraLink International and VOSH/International will ensure that vision screenings and exams lead to lasting impact, restoring sight and expanding opportunity for individuals, families, and communities worldwide.

About KeraLink International
KeraLink International is a nonprofit organization dedicated to restoring sight and preventing blindness in underserved communities worldwide. Learn more at www.keralink.org.

If US VOSH chapters are interested in the collaboration, please write to:

Jeff Soulliere
KeraLink Director of Strategic Partnerships and Initiatives
jsoulliere@keralink.org

or Maria Arce-Moreira VOSH/International Executive Director
vosh@vosh.org