The Baby Pantry Needs YOU!

The Settlement is entering its 25th year of certification and execution under the Vanderbilt Maternal Infant Health Outreach Worker (MIHOW) program. This program provides parental education, encouragement and support for expectant and new mothers through a process of home visits and settlement-based programming.

We have further supported this effort via our Baby Pantry, that supplies donated clothing, articles needed for early child care, supplies like diapers and wipes, infant formula, baby food and other items to community families.

The Baby Pantry is a God-send for first-time community parents, helping stretch tight budgets in support of the new family member. We have a waiting list of mothers who would like to be included in the MIHOW program, and periodic shortages of consumable supplies such as diapers and infant formula. We expect to staff an additional role later this summer to better operate and expand our early child care programming.

If you would like to support our infant and early childhood ministry, please send a financial donation to Henderson Settlement with the notation, "infant support" in the memo line of the check, or visit our Amazon Wish List that maintains an up-to-date listing of needed supplies. These items will then be direct-shipped by Amazon to the settlement.
