

About Dr. Fairy C. Hayes-Scott

Dr. Fairy Hayes-Scott is owner of Robbie Dean Press, a traditional textbook company which has operated for 25 years and MarketingNewAuthors.com (MANA), a self-publishing, marketing, and book distribution company established in 2002. Dr. Hayes-Scott is a college professor of English and Literature. As a professor, she initiated and taught one of the only all-Deaf English composition courses on a hearing campus. In addition, she taught American Sign Language and other lecture courses pertinent to the Deaf Community in an Interpreter Training Program for students studying to become sign language interpreters. She has worked as a supervisor of student teachers, and has written and edited books with her fifth book coming out in the summer. And she is a proud wife, mother, and grandmother. These various roles have afforded her the ability to recognize the uniqueness of a manuscript and know how to nurture writers through their development of the work.
