Letters to the Editor

Dear Readers,

My time as Hometown Weekly Editor has officially come to a close. Today's edition, Thursday, January 22, 2026 will be the last paper that I put out under the Hometown Weekly umbrella.

It has been a wonderful three years of serving this community— filled with laughter, learning, and wonderful connections foraged along the way.

As a Millis native, it has been an honor to become apart of the Dover, Sherborn, Medfield, Needham, Walpole, Westwood, and now Wellesley communities. I am grateful to all of the wonderful people that I have met along the way and all of the incredible town organizations that have embraced me as editor and invited me to know and work with over the last few years.

I will miss this position, these communities, and my wonderful coworkers, who at this point have become family, as I move forward on my career journey.

It is my intention to continue to write for the Hometown Weekly, as my passion still lies in writing, so I still will be around in some capacity.

From the bottom of my heart, thank you for your support as readers: for all of the lessons I have learned along the way, for reaching out about community events, for taking interest in the paper, and for the incredible feedback and kind words about my writing.

The Hometown Weekly and these communities will hold a special place in my heart for the rest of my life. And don't be afraid to reach out or say hello if you see me around!

Sincerely,

Julia Beauregard

Former Hometown Weekly Editor
