Former Japanese Navy Underground Headquarters

Located in Tomigusuku City, this underground bunker served as the command center of the Imperial Japanese Navy during the Battle of Okinawa in 1945.
Visitors can walk through the tunnels—still scarred by grenade blasts—and stand in the rooms where the commanding officers strategized, sent final messages, and where many took their own lives in the last days of the battle.

Highlights
- Command rooms, operations room, and staff quarters
- Traces of grenade damage and bullet marks
- Exhibits on the naval officers' final communications
- Insight into the atmosphere of the battle's final defense line

Himeyuri Peace Memorial (Himeyuri no Tō)

The Himeyuri Peace Memorial honors the Himeyuri Student Corps—222 female students and teachers who were mobilized as battlefield nurses.
Their stories illustrate the human cost of the war, as many lost their lives while caring for wounded soldiers in underground shelters.

Highlights
- Himeyuri Monument and Peace Museum
- Testimonies of surviving students
- Exhibits showing life inside underground field hospitals
- A powerful message of peace and remembrance
