One Year Later...10 More Things to Do

We just got an invitation to re-connect with our friends at Lab Shul in a Primal Scream event. We attended it at Washington Square last year. Before we screamed, we sang, we prayed, we cried, we hugged. The scream bubbled up out of our bodies, our grief, our surprise. It felt good, to let it out, let those feelings rise on the winds, rustle browning leaves, reach the heavens.

More than screaming, what healed me was being together in the beautiful diversity that is Manhattan. Jews, Muslims, Sikhs, Christians, people of no faith and people who had lost faith. Students, older people, clergy and lay leaders; a rainbow of ethnic, gender and sexual orientation diversity. One woman held her toddler close to her bosom, like she was a life raft. Maybe our children will save us from these swirling waters.

In the midst of more and more revelations of sexual misconduct by powerful men in the arts and in the media, one such man was elected to the highest office in our land. This shocks me to my core, still. A liar, a cheat, a sexual predator—our president. How desperate must so many have been for a change for this to happen. I feel like we are cast in a horrific reality show, and the premise of the show is: How far can POTUS push the envelope on decency and have our nation's most vulnerable citizens survive?

While I was grieving last year, I posted an article on HuffPost's religion page—"10 Spiritual Responses to the Election." You can still find it there. Brokenhearted, still, and more resolute than ever that we must persistently resist this administration with everything we have; I am calling us once again to ask, what would love demand of us? In these precarious times, what does Revolutionary Love and Resistance look like as an organizing principle? We need answers, and here are 10 NEW things to help us get there:

1. Get with some people you love and hug them, and cry with them, and let them love you back.
2. Make Revolutionary Love a spiritual practice. Antiracism, LGBTQ advocacy, caring for the poor and marginalized, supporting women's gifts, mentoring children, supporting common sense gun control, and demanding that everyone have enough healthcare and resources to thrive—this is the spiritual practice of Revolutionary Love.

3. Have some honest conversations with your friends and family members who voted for Trump. Ask them about how they see this administration now. Can we recruit some people to a worldview based in love and justice? We need to do that now!
4. Watch news from many perspectives; follow many viewpoints on social media. Let's learn what we need to do on the way to 2018. The political is personal AND spiritual. Jesus was political, never forget.
5. Come to church often, and bring friends. Join a Bible study. Let's learn about Revolutionary Love from the experts.
6. Pray, eat, love, breathe, exercise, sleep, laugh, play, take sabbath. We need to re-create in order to survive.
7. Donate to Middle Church, your one-stop hub for love and justice.
8. Invite your friends into a book and/or movie group. Watch 13th or Crash. Read Ta-Nehisi Coates and Kelly Brown Douglas. Learn. Make strategies. Invite them to join our movement.
9. Attend the Mosaic concert on November 5. Hear some amazing music, and raise money for Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

You give me such hope, Middle Family. You are resilient, loving, powerful, generous. You are revolutionary in your faithfulness, you are revolutionary in your love.

I love you madly,
Jacqui

Will You Give Clean Water?

Responding to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands

The Collegiate Church of New York made an initial donation of $10,000 to help the people of Puerto Rico with water filtration. As an ongoing effort, the Collegiate Church will match each dollar you give—up to an additional $15,000—through Sunday, December 3. Your money goes toward water filtration, supplies, infrastructure and power.

This initial donation of the Collegiate Church of New York purchased two water filtration kits for municipalities in Puerto Rico through Oasis Operation. Each kit costs $4,000. The Collegiate Church of New York also donated $2,000 to Waves for Water for water filtration in the Virgin Islands. We want more communities in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands to have clean water. Will you help? Donate today: bit.ly/donate-PR

At Middle Church, we celebrate that how we look, whom we love, our gender, and sexuality are unique expressions of the Divine. On November 19, activist-scholar Dr. Robyn Henderson-Espinoza will preach at our worship celebrations. In a sermon and in a class, Dr. Robyn will help us to have holy curiosity about the experiences of transgender and gender nonconforming people through the lenses of faith and liberation. Please plan to come to worship and spend time in adult education learning more about the "T" in our family, and the ways each of us is complex in our gender identity.

Save the Date! New Members Retreat!

Saturday, December 2

Meet Middle Member Aiyana Stern

I'm Aiyana Stern, and I come to Middle Church as an openly Jewish person. Though I have a synagogue, Beth Simchat Torah, the gay synagogue of New York, where I go on Jewish High Holy Days, Middle is the place I come to every week, where I connect and find a spiritual home.

I first learned about Middle when I took Tony Howell's African dance class at the Jewish Community Center almost 10 years ago. I came to Middle to see Tony perform; I never left, and I became an active member shortly afterward.

I grew up in an activist home, where my father was an immigrant and a labor organizer, and I participated in the civil rights movement, the women's liberation movement, and protests against the Vietnam war. Speaking up about injustice is at the heart of who I am, and I get to express that at Middle.

One of the high points of my experience here was participating in the year-long Healing Racism Task Force, where as a diverse group, we learned to share openly, to trust each other, and to confront privilege, stereotypes, and the pervasive racism in our nation. I am grateful that I was accepted for who I am, and made friendships based on our shared interests.

I have grown watching the example of Jacqui, who constantly models learning and changing in full view of us all, openly expressing her strong passions and feelings. Watching her gives me permission to express myself openly too, a part of me that I value and felt I had to keep hidden.

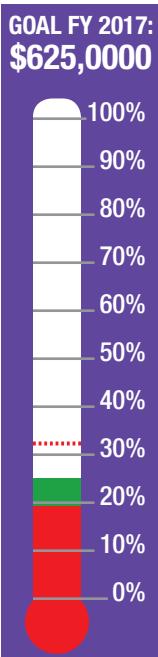

One of the basic tenets of Judaism is the importance of community, and I've found that value fully embodied here at Middle. I am inspired by being part of this diverse community with dedicated, thoughtful, open people. I know that Middle also gives a home to other people of many faiths and traditions.

There are many ways to serve and give back at Middle Church. I volunteer on the Middle Prays team; I've been an usher and greeter, contributed to the literary magazine, and recently I've participated in Butterfly, making and distributing sandwiches to hungry people in nearby parks. We also welcome your financial contributions to fund our worship, education and social justice programs.

So I'm inviting you to join the movement that is Middle Church; go to the table in the social hall and sign up. And when the offering bags go by, invest in Middle's amazing ministry. You have an opportunity here to become stronger in all that you are, whoever you are, and whatever faith background you come from.

We have an offering goal of $625,000 for July 1, 2017 through June 30, 2018. As of this writing, you have given $117,402.79—18.78% of our goal at 33% of the program year—and we have pledges for 6% more.

Donate now—visit bit.ly/power-love. For convenience, consider a recurring donation.

Middle Collegiate Church is a celebrating, culturally diverse, inclusive, and growing community of faith where all persons are welcomed just as they are as they come through the door. Rooted in Christian tradition as the oldest continuous Protestant Church in North America, Middle Church is called by God to boldly do a new thing on the earth.

As a teaching congregation that celebrates the arts, our ministries include rich and meaningful worship, care, and education that nurture the mind, body, and spirit, social action which embraces the global community, and participation in interfaith dialogue for the purpose of justice and reconciliation.
