SUFS Training:

Strengthening Support Networks for Refugees & Immigrants

Five one-hour modules · Fridays, 9:00–10:00 AM

November 6 – December 11, 2026

What is SUFS?

Setting Up for Success (SUFS) is a one-year workforce training pilot that pairs career-focused job training and English instruction with case management and direct assistance, so refugees, asylees, and other newcomers in New York State can move into living-wage jobs. Led by Every Campus A Refuge, SUFS brings together four New York colleges and two resettlement agencies to support 225 new New Yorkers.

Who is the SUFS Training for?

Everyone. The training sessions are open to anyone in our campus and community ecosystem — faculty, staff, students, resettlement partners, and community members — who want to better understand the refugee and newcomer communities we serve, and learn practical ways to welcome and support them on campus and in the community. Participants will receive a certificate of participation for each module they attend. Participants who complete all five modules will receive a certificate of achievement.
