

As the City of Springdale's Economic Development Director, Christine Russell focuses on expanding the economic base of Springdale through business attraction, business retention, and project development. With experience in both the public and private sectors, Christine has expertise in strategic economic development planning, formation of public-private partnerships, structuring financial assistance/incentives, and project management. In her former roles with Hull & Associates and the Port of Greater Cincinnati Development Authority, she collaborated with numerous municipalities, government agencies, and public stakeholders to advance economic development projects. She has managed multi-million dollar redevelopment projects and has over 22 years of diverse experience. Christine is a recognized expert in redevelopment strategy and financing and is a frequent speaker at local and national events.