The Great Container Cleanout

Being closed from mid-March through May gave us a lot of time to think about [projects needing our attention. One hot August Saturday, we went through our storage containers-some had been on the property since the museum's opening in 1987- and did some much-needed housekeeping. Delightful treasures were unearthed from the plantation era. Many items elicited oohs' and ahh's and inspired new exhibits, and some inspired a quick trip to the dumpster!

After the dust settled, we set aside several choice pieces such as household items, tools, and mill and field equipment. New exhibits will be developed, bringing these items back out into the light for the enjoyment of the community. There are still two more containers to inspect, and we are confident that there will be even more treasures to share in the future!
