The Presidential Election Series
Few elections in recent American history have generated the interests and passions of voters across the political spectrum, as much as the one taking place on November 3, 2020. In four 90-minute zoom sessions, beginning August 1, political scientist and popular instructor Robert Arseneau takes a dispassionate, even-handed look at the Trump administration and the upcoming election. Each session will include extensive Q & A debate from the audience.

Robert Arseneau earned his Ph.D studying political parties and elections from the University of California, Berkeley and was one of the most popular instructors at Dartmouth College for many years. His previous talks at Sunrise Senior College have attracted wide audiences.
