UNC Health Pardee Opens Physical Therapy Practice in Asheville

Asheville—UNC Health Pardee is expanding its physical therapy services with the opening of a seventh location at 1256 Hendersonville Rd in Asheville on July 23, 2025. Whether recovering from surgery or an injury, Pardee Physical Therapy helps patients heal and achieve their health and fitness goals. Patients are seen on an outpatient basis and are treated by licensed physical therapists.

Pardee Physical Therapy, a department of Pardee Hospital, offers individualized physical therapy to treat neck pain or injuries, back pain or injuries, shoulder impingement or rotator cuff pain, tennis elbow, knee pain, sprained ankles, sports injuries, and balance problems. Physical therapists utilize their training in advanced therapeutic techniques to help alleviate pain, initiate the body's natural healing process, and strengthen joints, muscles, and other structures to prevent future injuries.

Pardee Physical Therapy is accepting new patients. To schedule an appointment, call 828-435-8330.

UNC Health Pardee is a not-for-profit regional healthcare organization based in Henderson County and managed by UNC Health. The county-owned hospital was founded in 1953 in Hendersonville, NC, and is licensed for 222 acute care beds. Pardee has grown from the Henderson County Hospital to become a healthcare system that serves residents across Henderson, Haywood, Transylvania, and Buncombe counties, offering a wide range of medical services, including a comprehensive primary care physician network, a cancer center, three urgent care locations, four orthopedics and sports medicine clinics and a medical staff representing 43 specialties. For more information or to find a physician, visit www.pardeehospital.org.
