Sharing the journey towards healing & hope after the loss of a baby

HeartStrings is a group for parents and families grieving the death of a baby through pregnancy loss, infant loss, or stillbirth. Jessica's House provides a safe, caring place to share your story, and we create an environment that helps you find your own path through your loss. We're here to let you know that through it all, you are never alone.

When you lose a baby, it's easy to feel as though no one understands what you're going through. Often, what helps most is sharing and talking with others who have experienced the same kind of loss. Having others listen to and accept your expression of thoughts and feelings that arise in the process of grieving your baby can offer you and your family a space to heal.
