

The Urban Wood Academy

December 11-13, 2018, Baltimore, Maryland

The USDA Forest Service, together with Humanim and the City of Baltimore, will host a pilot Urban Wood Academy December 11–13, 2018, in Baltimore, MD. The Urban Wood Academy is a multi-day experiential workshop designed to share best practices and lessons learned around shared stewardship and building a networked, regional wood economy.

The Academy will allow practitioners to learn directly from Forest Service staff and partners who have developed and are scaling a successful urban wood economy in Baltimore. In addition, it will facilitate two way dialogue, uncovering potential differences in how a networked, regional wood economy may be implemented in different communities. For more information, please contact Sarah Hines.