

Kanab, Simply the Best

Kanab, Utah is known by the locals as “Little Hollywood” because of the many movies and television shows filmed in and around the area. Films and TV shows such as Stagecoach (which introduced us to a young John Wayne), The Lone Ranger, Death Valley Days and Gunsmoke, Daniel Boone, El Dorado, Planet of the Apes, Mackenna's Gold and The Outlaw Josey Wales as well as many more were based out of scenic Kanab.

The mountains around Kanab are rumored to be the hiding place of Aztec emperor Montezuma’s stolen treasure. While we won’t be leading any excavations searching for it, we promise to send you home with a treasure - maybe not Montezuma’s but certainly with a treasure chest of memories.

Kanab is quickly growing to become one of America's premier vacation spots. Fortunately for us it still has that small town charm that America loves. Uniquely located in the heart of the red rock canyon lands of Southern Utah, it offers a central location from which to base a hub-and- spoke tour.

Because of its location and charm many of America’s hotel chains are now expanding to Kanab and will be ready for our visit. We will be lucky to benefit from the advantage of many hotels to choose from while still enjoying the small quaint town atmosphere.

October provides a perfect time for our visit. The summer crowds have gone home and back to work or school. With average high temperatures in the 70’s and cool mornings, it’s perfect for both the Model A and “her” passengers.

Our hosts, Canyonlands Special Interest Group, have secured about 500 hotel rooms and an RV park (located in town) for the event. These hotels are centrally located which makes it easy to visit friends staying in other hotels or to find food and fuel.

More hotel information will be provided as we get closer.
