LETTER FROM THE PRINCIPAL

Dear Eckstein Community,

We just want to make sure you received the following information, which was sent via a Robo Email immediately after the incident:

This afternoon several north end middle schools received “phone threats” within minutes of each other. Eckstein was one of those schools. We responded, followed our practiced protocols and erred on the side of caution in securing our building until the end of the school day.

The Seattle Police Department (SPD) is providing extra ongoing presence and is continuing their investigation, but has determined that the call is most likely a hoax.

Please know that we take safety in our buildings very seriously; the well-being of our students is our top concern. I am proud of how our students and staff responded to this incident. We will continue to work with SPD and the district’s Safety and Security Office to ensure that we continue to respond appropriately.

Please feel free to contact me if you have questions or concerns.

Do you remember Scholastic Book Orders? I loved them, and they still exist! They have reading clubs for pre-K - 9th grade. If your child's teacher does NOT send book orders home and you want to order books, you can order any book from any Scholastic book order by going to their website: <https://clubs.scholastic.com/> and using this code to link your student to Mrs. Clark: NPKQ2. You can place all orders and purchase books online. Please do not send cash or checks to school. Mrs. Clark will place book orders on November 15. They take about 2 weeks to ship, so they should arrive the week of November 26. Then she will give students requests to reports to come pick up their books. She's always ordering for her own elementary school child, and you can order for all age groups, too. They have board books and early readers, as well as Young Adult Literature. If you are ordering a book as a gift, and don't want your student to know, send Mrs. Clark an email, ttclark@seattleschools.org, and she will arrange a pick up time.
