

Communicating with Farmers Under Stress Best Practices- Webinar

Date:

December 11, 2017

Time: Noon-1:30pm EST

To Register:

<https://extension.zoom.us/j/376966433>

Farmers and those within the agricultural industry have a tendency to be eternal optimists, but with all of the variability in agriculture, there are times when they can become overwhelmed and stressed more than usual.

Suzanne Pish, MA, CFLE
Extension Educator–
Michigan State University
pishs@anr.msu.edu
517-279-4311

The North Central Region- Rural Support Network Team has developed programming material specially designed for people who work with agricultural producers and farm families. Extension staff can learn ways to approach and communicate with those in need. We will share materials and lessons learned with the participants of this webinar.

The webinar will include:

Extension Specialist and Educators from five North Central Region states will provide updated information about how their state is responding to the increase in farmers that are under extreme stress.

The states that will be delivering the webinar include:

Michigan, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri

MSU is an affirmative-action, equal-opportunity employer, committed to achieving excellence through a diverse workforce and inclusive culture that encourages all people to reach their full potential. Michigan State University Extension programs and materials are open to all without regard to race, color, national origin, gender, gender identity, religion, age, height, weight, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation, marital status, family status or veteran status. Persons with disabilities have the right to request and receive reasonable accommodations.