Title: Trending Topics in Labor Law

12:00 p.m. – 1:00 p.m.

Description: The Obama-era NLRB has overturned nearly 100 cases - an estimated 4,559 years of precedent. Whether you love it or hate it, these changes have affected employers' rights to discipline employees who write profane rants on social media, enter into arbitration agreements and class action waivers to provide for expeditious and cost-effective resolution of employment disputes, and to utilize staffing agencies. Nemeth Law attorneys Michael Bommarito and Nicholas Huguelet discuss how these changes affect employers and their attorneys day-to-day and how it will fare under the Trump administration.
