INTERLEAGUER

COLUMN ONE

Competition was intense at our first ever Kare Youth Church Bible Basketball Tournament. It was a lot of fun for all involved.

To the Victor Go the Spoils

During a Congressional debate in 1831 New York Senator William Marcy first used the phrase, “to the victor belong the spoils.” It seems some didn’t like the tradition that the political party that was elected into office could replace government employees with its own people. Nothing political happened last Sunday in the first Kare Youth Church Bible Basketball Tournament, but there were plenty of children having fun, and some teams did get a chance to raise the victory trophy at the end. Congratulations to the Huskies, Seminole AAA, and Wildcat B for winning this year’s contest.

That is Not an Ink Splot

It may look like an ink splot or like someone dropped some ketchup on your Interleaguer, but that is not the case. Slime is coming to the SoccerFest at the Rose Bowl. More specifically, members can earn slime when they sell $75 worth of tickets (and your mom thought you would never amount to anything). There are lots of other great prizes too, like playground balls and In-n-Out gift cards, so start selling today.

Message in a Bottle: Part Two

Edited from Chicken Soup for the Soul

In late March, I drove home from my reporting job when I noticed a cloud fogging my right eye. I lost about 25 percent of my vision. By week’s end, I was totally blind in that eye. My vision returned in a few days, but in mid-June, after some tests, the doctors delivered the news that I had multiple sclerosis. This neurological disease is unpredictable and affects each individual so differently, anything could happen including blindness and paralysis.

I went into a tailspin – became angry, depressed and moody. I was exhausted every day. I dragged myself to work and quit writing the Cannons. I decided not to go to Belize. We hadn’t saved enough money, anyway. Four months went by, and finally, I responded to some of the Cannons’ letters. I told them about the multiple sclerosis and that we wouldn’t join them after all.

Then came a cold and unforgettable November night. When I came home, I smelled the familiar aroma of garlic and vegetables; Jim was cooking. I was feeling pretty miserable when I spotted a yellow envelope on the table. Jim looked up from the stove with a large smile and said, “Read it.”

Dear Dina and Jim,

We received your letter and we were very sorry to hear about your illness...it so happens we have a niece who has a travel agency in a suburb of Cleveland, and she has arranged for two round-trip tickets from Los Angeles to Belize for you. They will be free of charge and will be just the medicine you need; a week or so in San Pedro, Belize.

I looked at my husband. “Let’s go!” he shouted happily. “The Cannons wanted to do this. You should consider it one of the greatest gifts anybody has ever given you.” It was a gift of hope.

When we arrived in the sandy streets of San Pedro and met the Cannons on the hotel porch, I couldn’t thank them enough. Their message in a bottle had returned my hope, and still does to this day.
