GRAND PRIX RIDER & PAST ASSISTANT FOR 10 YEARS TO
GEORGE MORRIS

JEFF COOK

Jeff has been a professional rider and trainer since 1979. He worked for George Morris as his assistant on two occasions, five years each, where he honed his skills under the perfectionist hunter/jumper trainer. Jeff has been a successful Grand Prix level rider and an "A" circuit rider/trainer, with students winning at both national and international competitions. Jeff has also contributed numerous articles to Practical Horseman magazine, including, but not limited to a 28 part series on starting horses over fences.

Jeff is the head trainer at Kilkenny Crest in Bend, Oregon. In the past years he has devoted more of his professional career to teaching clinics around the country. Jeff and his family – his wife, twin daughters and a son – live on a 20-acre farm near Kilkenny.
