

FOR THOSE OF YOU WHO GUESSED MARIAN ADEIMY, YOU WOULD BE CORRECT!

Word on the street is that you have taken some interesting hikes. Can you tell about hiking experiences you have enjoyed?

While studying abroad in law school, I was fortunate enough to visit Croatia, where we hiked the Krka waterfalls.

The Krka National Park is known for a series of 7 waterfalls, a portion of which was built above ancient Roman catacombs. It was amazing to see historic Roman ruins influenced by Eastern European culture.

We also recently hiked the McAfee's knob in Virginia. The view from that part of the Appalachian Trail is unforgettable.

Do you have any favorite pets? What does your pet enjoy doing with you?

We have a rare breed, a Huskeranian, better known as a Pomski. Like most dogs, Shelby is a member of our family. She helps by searching for the cat, after what she considers to be an unreasonably prolonged absence.

Shelby's claim to fame is when she delivered a squirrel, who had seen better days, to our housewarming cookout.

Interestingly, she is only able to climb on the sofa without assistance when we're not looking.

Now I have heard of folks becoming an arbitrator, but I understand you have embarked on International Arbitration. Can you tell us about that? How did your travels go in Austria?

In law school, I was accepted to study in Austria for six weeks at the Johannes Kepler University in Linz, Austria. Linz is an art-driven college town situated on the Danube (Donau) River. Its location made it possible to take regular day and weekend trips to visit a number of international arbitration courts and meet with renowned arbitrators in Vienna, Budapest, Prague, Switzerland, and Venice.

You once told me about North Carolina roots, but your family heritage is rumored to precede the state of North Carolina even being created. How did that come about?

My mother's family, the Holt's, immigrated from Germany through England, to Jamestown, where King George granted their debts paid and gave them land in Alamance and Orange County, North Carolina.

They became well-known textile industrialists and civic leaders from the 1700's through today. They helped start textile mills that lead to what we now know as Burlington. They also claim one the few original jean patents.

My father's family, the Adeimy's, immigrated from Lebanon in the late 1800's due to the war and persecution of Christians. They owned a seamstress shop and men's store, also in the Carolinas.

Notably, I can't sew a stitch.

Thank you, Marian, for being our 'Mystery Bar Member!'
