

Rick Wampler and his daughter, Fiona, after her Diaper Derby victory during halftime at the UVA v. Georgia Tech men's basketball game on January 21

RICK WAMPLER

Rick graduated from UVA in 2005 with a double major in Commerce and Math and is now an analyst at Quantitative Investment Management. When not at work, Rick enjoys John Grisham novels and Sports Analytics. His proudest sports accomplishment to date was coaching his young daughter to victory in the halftime Diaper Derby. In last year's Bracket Tournament, Rick had Villanova winning it all, which made him the grand prize winner. Today, having just returned from Brooklyn where he scouted the ACC teams in person, Rick is ready to add his analytical perspective to the player perspective.