Drs. Johnson and Mills were joined by fellow Bowdoin alumni Catherine Hamilton (vice president of consumer services and planning at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Vermont) and Stephen F. Loeb (professor emeritus at Ohio State University) for the event titled “The Affordable Care Act in Action”, which took place on November 17 at the Bowdoin Public Library.

The event was organized as a discussion with students and alumni to focus on the future of healthcare in America under the Trump administration and to reflect on both the successes and challenges of the ACA as well as ideas for healthcare reform.
