Public transportation, sometimes called mass transit, has become an issue of interest for Hamilton County. Advocates of the service are gearing up for the start of new bus routes in Marion County and hopes of providing service to our county. It is interesting to look back at the history of transportation for the public locally. Local residents like myself can recall when two bus lines served commuters from Hamilton County to downtown Indianapolis. The ABC and the Sheridan Bus Company provided dependable transportation to Indy for years. ABC’s route from Anderson to Indianapolis came through Noblesville and then south on Allisonville Road. There was a stop at the Diana Theatre Building on North 9th Street and at the Butler Oil Station at 116th and Allisonville, along with other stops along the way the someone was standing at the roadside. The Sheridan bus came south from Sheridan to Westfield and on to Carmel and Home Place. It would also stop along the route for riders waiting at roadside.

Both bus lines ended their routes at the downtown Indianapolis bus terminal on Market Street a block west of Monument Circle. Hundreds of commuters rode these buses in the ’50s and ’60s. By the ’70s, however, with two-car households and better roads, bus riding dropped off to the point that service was discontinued. Before the bus service there was the interurban which was similar to what is called light rail today. These electric powered vehicles, similar to a streetcar, traveled on a main line that service was discontinued.

It was Friday morning and I was waiting at the surgery center for her to have a procedure on her knee. She had walked back on the path and said I had to come see her. She woke up in the wee hours of the morning and thought about how she would live her life differently, if she had the chance. Now this was going to be interesting.

She said, “Well, definitely I would marry your dad and even then some time on this, remember they served at 16 (30) years just went through to love each other.

She said she had found out early in their marriage that they were unable to have children and thought they would just go through life as a couple. A few years before they turned 10 they decided they wanted to adopt. After two unsuccessful adoptions where a more charming girl and I was three days old. She said she was the kind of baby that wasn’t given to someone else. I told her that.

She said the woman who had collected more records. I always knew she loved music. She had collected various unusual records that she had bought at the Indiana County Fair in Kentucky. She said it had been a fresh spring at the back of the house that the best tasting water and the prettiest rocks. She found them in the garden it would grow. She said it never did.

I remember one vacation where we stopped along the roadside in South Dakota and there were rose quartz rocks. She desired them from there to way into Indiana for Mom’s rock garden.

Then she told me she had been nicer to the people.

She said that she really took my surprise. Anyone who knows my mother knows that she is nice. I mean she is a lady who shows up with a fruit cocktail cake if you had a death in the family. She calls when she knows you aren’t feeling well to tell you that she is praying for you. I always believed that she had a hotline to God. Her Bible was always open. I never thought she knew her. I always thought she knew how big of a compliment she was given. The warmed up blankets might have been a big part in that statement by my mom.

We headed home and I said a prayer to God for giving me such a nice mom. I only hope I can be half as nice as a lady as she is. And I think I’ll be collecting some rocks.

Don’t let the ‘quick fix’ mentality undermine your health efforts

By SHARON MCMAHON

“Everything is hard before it is easy.”
— Goethe

When I read/hear/view about all the wonderful “weight loss” programs that abound in our Western society today, I am saddened by the number of people who literally buy in to the multi-billion dollar industry which frequently promises miraculous results, and in a very short time of course! To the best of my knowledge (and in my Christian belief) authentic miracles are recorded only in the Holy Bible. And to the best of my memory (although I am not a biblical scholar!) weight loss is not recorded as one of those miracles…

That brings me to the topic of this article. We have become a society which expects, and even demands, instant results. From the growing/preparation of our foods – having the “dream home” - to wrinkle removers and everything in between, we want it now. Generally, the effects of smoking, eating poorly, a sedentary lifestyle and inactivity take a while to actually become visible. Yet the general population expects remarkable results in a short period of time. Lose 20 lbs. in a month – sure! Nine inches off the hips in a matter of weeks – why not?

It seems to me, with the number of fitness centers, weight-loss programs, workout DVDs, and the high-tech fitness equipment available, that 70% of Americans should not be overweight.

Let’s take a look at some of the possible reasons why this might be the case. Grocery “super stores” are filled to the brim with many aisles of processed, sugar-heavy, chemical-laden items. The further out the date, the more wary you should be of that particular “food” product. Additionally, if you live in any area of the country that claims to be a city or town, you don’t have to travel far to find “fast food” establishments. Although it is true that some of these provide salads and some pseudo-healthy alternatives, too many of us frequent them far too often.

There is a modern, proverbial adage, “if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is” and I do believe this in relation to the above topic. People are frequently derailed when they find they are unable to obtain their fitness goals in a short period of time, and/or stay consistent with the healthy lifestyle required to maintain their goal. Don’t let the “quick fix” mentality undermine your efforts and determination to be healthy, fit, and energetic. You can do it!

Published author, ghostwriter, and blogger Susan Sparks presents Prepare, Polish & Publish on Wednesday, March 29 at 5 p.m. The public is invited to this special author event, hosted by the Atlanta branch of Hamilton North Public Library, located at 100 South Walnut Street, Atlanta.

With her background in print, radio, and speeches, including a career in Navy Public Affairs, Sparks offers experienced writing tips and advice to help authors and would-be writers to “prepare, polish, and publish” their writing. She believes that everyone has a story but few people tell it. Getting off the starting block is one of the obstacles to sharing a story, and Sparks has learned ways to inspire and equip others to begin sharing their stories.

Business associates may be interested in this presentation, as businesses have stories to tell as well. Knowing which stories to choose and how to tell them can make a difference in reaching potential customers and clients. Success lies in learning what a reader really wants.

Prepare, Polish, & Publish with guest author, Susan Sparks is March 29 from 5:00-6:30 p.m. at the Atlanta branch of the Hamilton North Library.
Sheridan Rotarians hear about post-stroke speech therapy

Do you know what APHASIA is? It is the loss or impairment of the ability to use or comprehend words. It is quite common among stroke victims and can also occur with other types of brain traumas. This devastating condition is the third largest cause of death among the elderly and each year nearly 100,000 people in this country suffer a stroke.

This past week Sheridan Rotarians had a program about aphasia from a real expert in the field. Megan Sutton, daughter of Kay (left) and Sheridan Rotarian Fred (right) Sturdevant was the guest speaker at club's Tuesday meeting. She works to help these afflicted individuals regain their use of speech through a variety of methods learned over the years. A new approach pioneered by Megan and her colleagues in her hometown of Vancouver, BC uses a series of computer apps (actuatorapy.com) to reinforce the hands-on therapy she gives her patients. Megan is also a co-author on a new book "Healing the Broken Brain" available on Amazon about aphasia therapy. At the present time she is preparing to travel extensively across America and Europe promoting her new book and her computer applications for stroke recovery.

Sheridan Rotary tries to present interesting programs twice a month to its members, and non-members are always welcome to attend. The club has formal meetings on the first and third Tuesdays of each month with dinner at 6:15 and guest speaker at 7 p.m. The meetings are held in the Community Room of the Sheridan Public Library. On the remaining Tuesdays of each month, the club members are involved in community projects such as leaf and trash removal in the parks, working to put on community meals, doing community construction projects and sometimes just cleaning up an eyesore.

If you would like more information about Rotary or would like to attend a formal meeting, please contact any Rotary member or stop by the library and visit with club president Steve Martin. And remember that our guest speaker programs begin at 6:45 p.m. and do not require any permission to attend; they are open to the public. Our program for Tuesday evening, March 21 will feature Sheridan Schools Superintendent Dr. Dave Mundy who will talk about the upcoming school referendum.

Sheridan genealogy is available at the Museum on Main Street

Did you know Sheridan has a museum on Main Street? It is not real big and it is not manned by highly paid professionals, but it competently tells the story of who we are and where we came from here in Sheridan.

The Executive Director of the museum is Sheridan’s own Jim Pickett. He is skillfully assisted in his work by all the members of the Sheridan Historical Society, but most especially by Stuart Neal and his sister Mary, and Winona Moso. These four people run the museum when it is open to the public on Tuesday and Friday afternoons from 1 p.m to 4 p.m. They will answer any question, give you lots of information about the hundreds of items on display and they will entertain you with humorous observations about our community.

As you delve into Sheridan genealogy, you need go no further than Mr. Pickett. Jim has a desk full of binders full of community obituaries. Being life-long residents of Sheridan, Jim and his helpers probably personally know any family you are interested in researching and can be very helpful if you are not sure of particular individuals within a family. Generally speaking, if you just know the last name, Jim and the others will take it from there and be able to provide you with a whole host of other family members, where they lived, who their children were or still are, who they married, where they worked, and best of all, they can probably provide you with interesting tales related to your particular family.

Sheridan Rotarians hear about post-stroke speech therapy

In addition to doing genealogy research, Jim and the museum crew can entertain you with great community stories, often backed up by the thousands of old postcards, memoribilia and old pictures located in the museum. They have a collection of Sheridan tales ranging from years ago going back over a hundred years and they have all the genealogy photographs saved from the old Adama buildings.

The museum is run under the auspices of the Sheridan Historical Society for the benefit of all those who value our cultural heritage. One of the Society’s highlights is the monthly field trips around the community as part of their Indiana history study. The kids visit the museum for a talk with Jim and his staff; they walk over to the post office for a tour; they walk to the library where director and Society vice president Steve Martin gives them a tour and talk about Andrew Carnegie; and then they stop at Veterans Park for a visit to the restored Boxley Cabin. The Sheridan Historical Society is an integral part of the Sheridan Community. In addition to the museum, the Society organizes the annual Boxley Lecture Series cultural program in February and organizes the annual Bluegrass Festival in April. Beginning this year the Society will partner with the Hamilton County Parks Department to bring bluegrass aficionados the new Hamilton County Bluegrass Festival on July 7 and 8 at Bishop Park in Arcadia in place of the Sheridan Bluegrass Festival.

The Society meets on the second Monday of every month at 7 p.m. in the Community Room of the Sheridan Public Library. Several times a year the monthly meeting will feature an interesting guest speaker; the monthly meetings are always open to the general public. Membership in the Society is only $20 a year and $110 buys you a lifetime membership. For more information about the Sheridan Historical Society, call (317-738-5054) or visit (308 South Main Street) the museum any Tuesday or Friday afternoon from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., or just come to one of our monthly meetings at the library. Won’t you join us?

Qualifying for the Hoosier State Relays wrapped up this weekend. Hamilton County athletes will likely have a strong showing at the meet, which is scheduled for Saturday at Indiana University. A large number of Hamilton County athletes will likely be in the lineup on Saturday. There are two divisions, for boys and girls each. Large School takes the schools from football classes 4A, 5A and 6A, while the Small School division consists of classes 1A, 2A and 3A. The top 24 qualifiers in each event earn a spot at the relays; except for certain fields like football and wrestling, the top 18 qualifiers make the cut. There is a list of qualifiers, based on results posted to the Direct Athletics website. Please note that this is an unofficial list.
