Berry good Noblesville festival

The Reporter photos by Stu Clampitt

Friday and Saturday marked the 40th Annual Strawberry Festival in downtown Noblesville on the Square. Each year, volunteers from St. Michael's Episcopal Church set up shop on the Courthouse Square to assemble and serve thousands of strawberry shortcakes to passersby and supporters. (ABOVE) Cassandra Goldsberry, 22, Crawfordsville, enjoyed her shortcake with strawberries, ice cream and whipped topping. She told The Reporter she had been at a similar festival in another county just last week, but instead of strawberries, it was all corn dogs and nachos. Hamilton County would never let THAT happen to strawberry festival fans and supporters! (TOP RIGHT) Britta Grant, 30, Noblesville, was at the festival for the first time as part of her Food and Culture class from Arizona State University, which she attends online through the Starbucks College Achievement Plan. She was having a good time and working on her report, which is due Monday. Good luck, Britta. The Reporter gives you an A for sharing your table and your story. Visit our Facebook page, www.Facebook.com/HamiltonCountyReporter for video from this year's festival.

Remembering the Justice of the Peace God bless the Bonus Dads

My lunchtime friends at Alexander's so-called Table of Knowledge this week were recalling the days when we had a Justice of the Peace in Noblesville. Actually, we had three in Hamilton County. You don't hear much about the JPs anymore. They were essentially legislated out of office in the 1970s.

FRED SWIFT
The County Line

The Justice of the Peace headed one of Indiana's earliest courts of justice. Starting right after statehood, the courts had considerable authority until well into the 20th century when their powers were reduced to handle mainly traffic infractions.

However, just like in the movies, the JP could perform marriages, administer oaths and consider a few other civil matters. Justices were elected by voters of the township in which they resided. A JP did not have to be a lawyer, and most were not. This was of great concern to the state judiciary and was a major reason for the demise of the position.

Statewide there were probably few female JPs, but two of the three in this county were women. Naomi Hunt was Noblesville's longtime JP. She held court at her home at 612 S. 11th St.

Agnes Mitchell was the JP in Cicero who also operated out of her home.

The Justice of the Peace in Carmel was John Christy. He held court in a tiny cement block building across the street from the old Carnegie Library.

County Court replaced the JP courts about 1980 where the judge was required to be an attorney, but it was, in turn, replaced by a Superior Court in the 1990s.

Thus, with little fanfare, another chapter in Hamilton County history came to an end. Now, most folks either can't remember or are too young to remember what a Justice of the Peace was.

He is a very special man. He stepped in and stepped up. He's often not on the Father's Day Facebook post that says "Happy Father's Day". Seldom does he open a Father's Day Card.

Indiana Transportation Museum plans to file federal lawsuit

The REPORTER

The Indiana Transportation Museum (ITM) announced Friday plans to file a federal lawsuit against the cities of Noblesville and Fishers, in addition to the Hoosier Heritage Port Authority (HHPA) and Hamilton County government.

The suit will focus on the Port Authority's decision to cease train operations on the 37-mile track that runs through Hamilton County to downtown Indianapolis. The Port Authority claims the track is unsafe.

After the announcement made by the Port Authority, the cities of Noblesville and Fishers, along with Hamilton County Commissioners, announced a plan to convert the track into a 14-foot wide trail.

The Indiana Train Museum is located in Noblesville's Forrest Park. Recently the City of Noblesville initiated an EPA investigation alleging the organization was improperly storing hazardous materials on site.

Prior to the Port Authority's decision, ITM operated popular excursions such as

Westfield Boulevard extension to close 151st and Greyhound Pass

The REPORTER

The city of Westfield is finalizing the construction of the Westfield Boulevard Extension project. The final phase is constructing a roundabout at 151st Street and Greyhound Pass.

"The Westfield Boulevard Extension has been part of the city's Thoroughfare Plan in response to the US 31 turning in to a freeway," says Mayor Andy Cook. "This roadway will offer local traffic an easy way to commute from downtown Westfield to our shopping district at 151st Street and residents will have access to businesses that were affected by the US 31 freeway construction."

May Indiana employment report

The REPORTER

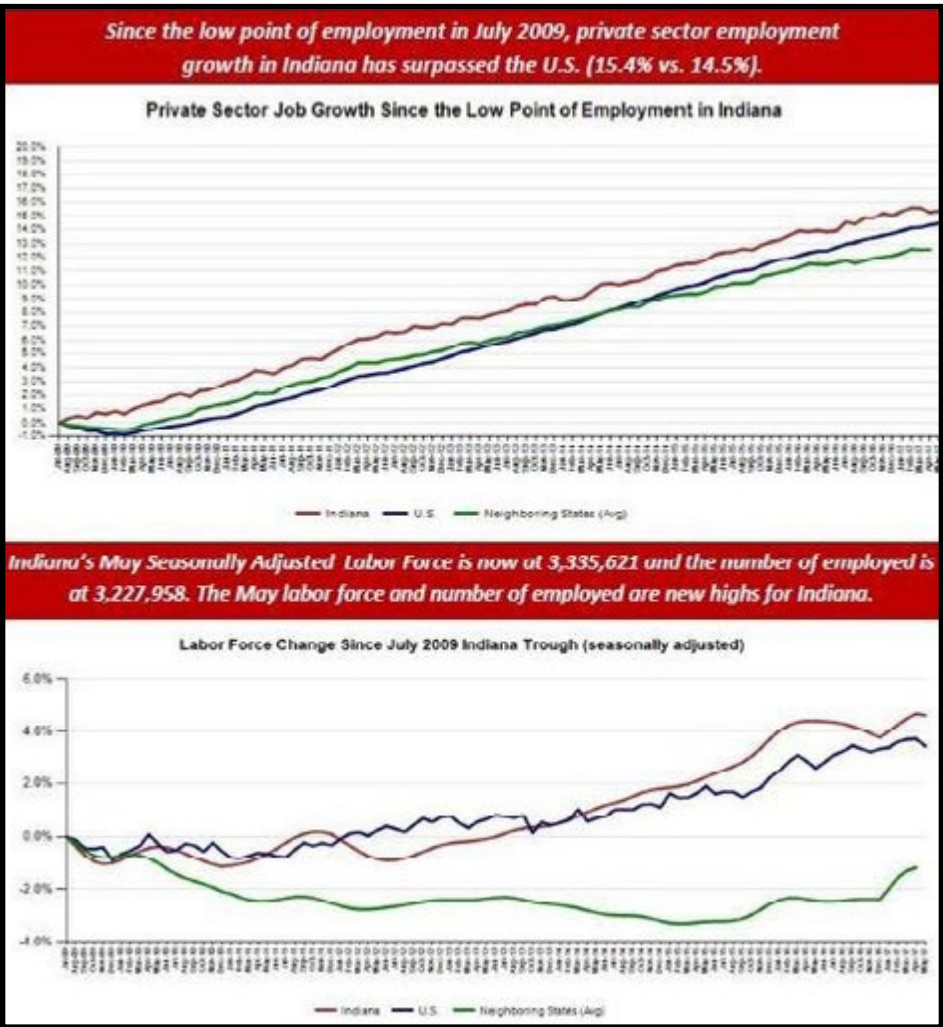

Indiana's unemployment rate stands at 3.2 percent for May and remains lower than the national rate of 4.3 percent. The unemployment rate is a U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) indicator that reflects the number of unemployed people as a percentage of the labor force. Indiana's labor force decreased by 2,062 over the previous month with an 8,946 increase in employment and an 11,008 decrease in unemployment. Indiana's total labor force stands at more than 3.33 million, and the state's 64.5 percent labor force participation rate remains above the national rate of 62.7 percent.

"Indiana continues to see its unemployment rate remain at levels not seen for nearly two decades. The state's strong economy and the growing workforce needs of businesses are the main drivers of this," said Steven J. Braun, Commissioner of the Indiana Department of Workforce Development (DWD). "Those who are unemployed or feel they are underemployed are urged to stay positive and take advantage of the resources and job assistance programs offered by their local WorkOne Career Centers."

Braun added that Indiana continues to see a decline in unemployment insurance claims, which he believes is directly related to a constricting labor market. Meeting employer demand of the more than one million jobs that are projected to be filled over the next 10 years presents both an opportunity and a challenge in developing the state's workforce, he noted.

Employment by Sector

Private sector employment has grown by more than 36,100 over the year and has increased by 2,500 over the previous month, primarily due to gains in the Private Educational & Health Services (3,100) and the Construction (2,100) sectors. Gains were partially offset by losses in the Transportation, Trade and Utilities (-4,100) and the Manufacturing (-2,500) sectors. Total private employment stands at 2,680,800 and is 3,900 above the November 2016 peak.

"real" father forgot(?) to send one.

He's been the man waiting, in line and then in a hard chair, to hear the kids sing a few songs in a school program. "Dad" may or may not have shown up but their bonus dad would not miss it for anything.

He tells his friends about his bonus daughter or son getting accepted into college. He packed his car with their stuff and helped their mom tuck them into their college dorm. He shared a few tears with their mom as they drove home.

He's watched the little girl, that he helped to raise, dance with her "Dad" on her wedding day. She wore the dress the bonus dad bought her. He just sat quietly and smiled...and wiped tears of both joy and pride.

He took the call for help when his bonus son had a flat tire. The son knew who would show up at a moment's notice.

It seemed like forever when he waited up for his bonus son to arrive home from his date. Why is it that five minutes after curfew seems like an eternity? Yes, he wanted to strangle him and hug him at the same time.

He can be heard talking about them and saying "our" kids.

Like I said at the beginning of this column. He stepped in and he stepped up. He is the Bonus Dad.

God bless those who often do not get the recognition they deserve. Happy Father's Day to all the Bonus Dads. I hope you feel the love that you deserve from those who are blessed to call you their Bonus Dad.

Arts create local jobs, economic impact

The REPORTER
Local nonprofit arts and culture sector is a significant industry, contributing to the local economy, creating employment and volunteer opportunities and attracting travelers, according to a new study of the arts in Hamilton County.
The Arts & Economics Prosperity 5 (AEP5) study that used 2015 and 2016 data concluded that the arts had a $58.1 million economic impact and supported 1,921 jobs countywide in 2015.
Conducted by the nation's nonprofit, Americans for the Arts, AEP5 determines the economic impact of nonprofit arts and cultural organizations and their audiences. This is the fifth study completed and the first for Hamilton County.
"Arts-related programs are appealing to travelers, and this has been a tremendous area of growth for tourism in Hamilton County," said Brenda Myers, Hamilton County Tourism Inc. president and CEO.
The results are from a collection of more than 1,200 intercept studies at more than 100 arts events throughout 2016, and from 2015 financial reporting by more than 20 county nonprofit arts organizations. Other findings from the AEP5 study include:

Spending by arts organizations and their patrons in Hamilton County:
• $5.6 million in state and local taxes generated
• 92,000 in volunteer hours for a donated value of $2.2 million
Patrons of arts-related programming:
• 68.6 percent of residents and 31.4 percent non-residents
• 15.6 percent of non-residents stayed overnight as part of their experience
• More than 1.3 million visits to arts events
• 53.2 percent of residents would have traveled elsewhere to enjoy an arts experience if one had not been available locally
• 62.9 percent of non-residents would have traveled elsewhere to enjoy an arts experience if one had not been available

here
Myers said the study estimates that more than 12,500 hotel room nights are generated from arts travelers.
"Arts programming is the best example of our 'great places to live and visit,' adage," she said. "We value that our community leaders have chosen to invest in the arts here."
Carmel Mayor Jim Brainard said the city understands that many professionals now select where they live before they determine where they work. With that, the arts provide cultural and educational amenities that help attract a top-quality workforce.
"Carmel views the arts as a vital economic development tool as we seek to create a thriving world-class city able to compete globally to attract and retain businesses," Brainard said.
Hamilton County Tourism Inc. sponsored the study's costs, which included the participation fee, management of the project and the cost of professional surveyors.

What was Lyles Station?

The REPORTER

1819—At his home in Corydon, Indiana Governor Jonathan Jennings met with President James Monroe and General Andrew Jackson. The two were on a tour of frontier states.

1882—William M. Scholl was born on a farm near La Porte. While working in a shoe repair shop, he developed an interest in podiatry. After attending medical school, he began to manufacture arch supports. His business expanded, and today Dr. Scholl's is one of the largest makers of foot care products.

1953—Former President Harry Truman and his wife Bess stayed overnight in Indianapolis at the home of Frank McKinney, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee. The Trumans were on a private trip to Washington, D.C. in their new Chrysler New Yorker. Traveling out of town on US 40, they were stopped at a state police safety check station near Greenfield, where Truman cheerfully signed autographs and posed for pictures.

1964—A private plane carrying Indiana Senator Birch Bayh and his wife Marvella crashed into an apple orchard near Southampton, Massachusetts. Bayh pulled fellow Senator Edward Kennedy from the wreckage. Pilot Edwin Zinny and Kennedy Aide Edward Moss were killed.

2002—Indiana First Lady Judy O'Bannon helped dedicate the historical marker at Lyles Station, an early African-American community in Gibson County. At its peak in the late 19th century, the town had over 50 homes, a post office, a railroad station, two general stores, and a school. The school has been restored and now serves as a museum and cultural center.

A “Good” run for Emily and Carmel softball

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

There was one more game to play before the high school softball season was officially over: The annual ICGSA All-Star game.

Carmel's Cherry Tree Softball Complex hosted the event Saturday morning. The game is actually two games, a doubleheader between a North team and a South team. Greyhounds coach Emily Good served as the co-chair of the games, which have taken place at Cherry Tree for the past five years.

"It's been extremely enjoyable," said Good. "It's great for our community to bring the best of the state of Indiana right here to Carmel. Obviously it helps from a financial standpoint with people coming in to spend money in Carmel and surrounding areas. I think when you've got a beautiful complex like this, it's nice to be able to put it on display."

Good announced that she is stepping down as Carmel head softball coach. Good was the head coach for the Greyhounds for 14 years, starting in 2004. She is also stepping down as coordinator for the All-Star game.

Good was the freshman coach for Carmel in 2003, a year before moving up to the head coach position.

The Greyhounds have had a solid record of success during Good's tenure as coach. That includes four sectional championships, in 2006, 2009, 2010 and 2012. Carmel won regional titles in 2011 and 2012, a semi-state title in 2011, and the Class 4A state championship in 2011, getting past Avon 1-0 in eight innings.

In addition, the 'Hounds won five Metropolitan Conference titles under Good, in 2008, 2009, 2010, 2015 and 2016.

Prior to coming to Carmel, Good was an assistant coach at Indiana State (her alma mater) for a year, and was an assistant at Terre Haute South for five years.

"It's been a tremendous ride," said Good. "I could not have asked for a better situation, better support, have an administration that has backed us. We've been part of a complex build. I still believe that we have the best facilities in the entire state. I'm very, very proud of that."

Good said she is "super proud" of her players and everything they've accomplished over the years.

"It's really about them at the end of the day. We've had tremendous support from families and for our alumni to come back year after year and still be vested in this program says a lot. It was a very, very difficult decision, but I feel like whomever

Carmel’s Lauren Lemonds had a successful first year as a high school tennis player.

Successful? How about undefeated? Lemonds didn’t lose a match during the season, and is this year’s Hamilton County Reporter Girls Tennis Player of the Year.

Lemonds, a junior that had been homeschooled prior to enrolling in Carmel, finished the season 33-0 and led the Greyhounds to a team state championship. Lemonds then breezed to victory at the individual singles championship, becoming Carmel’s first state singles winner since Sophie Grabinski in 2004.

our administration decides to go with, I know that they're going to be in good hands."

ALL-STAR SPLIT

The All-Star doubleheader ended in a split: The North team won the first game over the South team 9-8, while South took Game 2 by a score of 5-1. In between, season-ending awards were handed out, with Plainfield's Ashton Slone receiving the Miss Softball award. Penn coach Beth Zachary was named Coach of the Year.

This all took place in a front of a good-sized crowd at Cherry Tree. Good said that attendance has "been pretty steady" over the years, but as the All-Star game continues to get more attention and promotion, the event becomes something people look forward to.

"We're starting to see a lot of people throughout the years that are coming back and continuing to look forward to this event," said Good.

While the attention continues to increase, so does the talent. Good said she and other coaches were having a conversation about that, noting that there continues to be an increase in the number of high school players who play at the college level.

But above all, Good said one of the best part is getting to watch softball, saying "it's just been a nice opportunity to be able to not only host, but obviously be able to watch as well, as a fan."
