Definitions of Art Classifications

The Art Classifications have been assigned by the Art Show Steering Committee based on both each artists description of the art they would bring to the show and the art that artists have featured at their booth in the past.

Fine Art – Art as an expression of emotion and skill which has a primary esthetic purpose and no practical use (primarily painting, sculpture, photography, decorative glass work, etc.)

Functional Art – Art as an expression of emotion and skill which has a functional purpose but is produced to have a significant esthetic component that would not be thought of as common for that type product (primarily jewelry, decorative furniture, functional pottery, wood working, and artistic practical items like pens, knives and lamps, etc.)

Craft Art – Art as an expression of emotion and skill that is more repetitive in its creation and composed of more functional items and primarily for a decorative, household or personal use and which uses materials not traditionally associated with fine arts (primarily decorative signs, painting with words or phrases, yard art, seasonal art, textiles, hanging art made from metal or wood, homemade soaps, etc.)

Outsider Art – Art as an expression of emotion and skill that uses media outside the mainstream of fine art or produced by artists that are outside the mainstream of artists, but that uses several of the tools of fine art (painting on wood, cardboard or other media; or using themes, media or artists from outside the fine art mainstream while using oils or other fine arts materials, etc.)

Literary Art – Art through the written word as an expression of emotion and skill, information and thought in a variety of written forms (works of poetry, fiction and non-fiction of varying lengths and styles, etc.)
