THE SLANDER OF THE SPIES

Moshe sends out 12 spies to check out the Holy Land. Forty days later, on the 8th of Av, the spies return to the Midbar. They go past Moshe's tent, straight for the public address system and broadcast their report to the entire nation. They start out by saying that the land really does flow with milk and honey and that the land grows huge fruits. So far so good, but at this point the spies turn against Moshe and announce that only superhumans could live in such a land. The spies go on to discourage the Bnai Yisrael with lots of reasons not to even attempt to enter Eretz Yisrael: There's no place for a sneak attack; There are giants living there; There's disease and plague wherever you go... The crowd is in an uproar!

Moshe tries to remind them that Hashem will do the real fighting but they don't want to hear it! Then Calev steps up to the plate. He yells out, "And that's not all Moshe did to us!" The crowd quiets down with the hopes of hearing more Lashon Hora. But instead, Calev reminds the people of Moshe's dedication: "Moshe split the sea and got the Mann to rain down every morning and he will lead us to conquering the land of Israel with Hashem's help!" Moshe takes it from here, reminding the people that Yehoshua agrees that they can win it.

But the score is ten to two and the bad report wins in a shout out. There's no going back. Darkness has fallen and the spies have doomed Bnei Yisrael to remember Tisha B'Av (the 9th of Av) as a dark day for all time. What could have been a great Kiddush Hashem has instead become a Chilul Hashem racked with Lashon Hora.

DID YOU KNOW?

Did you know that Rabbi Gershom Mendes Seixas was the first Rabbi born in America (in 1745)? In late August, 1776, the British were on the march to NYC. As Rav of Congregation Shearith Israel (then on Mill St. and now on Central Park West) Rabbi Seixas closed the shul & safeguarded its ceremonial objects, which are still displayed to this day. He moved the congregation to Philadelphia for the duration of the Revolutionary War, and eventually participated in George Washington's inauguration in 1789. His brother, Benjamin, was also one of the founders of the New York Stock Exchange.

JEWISH HEROES: DONNA GRACIA MENDES 1510-1569

Donna Gracia Mendes was born in Lisbon, Portugal, into a prominent and affluent family of forcibly converted Jews known as Conversos (also called Marranos). While still Jewish, the family fled to Portugal when the Catholic Monarchs, Queen Isabella I of Castile and King Ferdinand II of Aragon, expelled the Jews in 1492. Five years later, in 1497, they were forcibly converted to Catholicism along with all the other Jews in Portugal at that time. Mendes was born 12 years later.

Garcia married the incredibly wealthy banker Francisco Mendez-Nassi. After he died in 1535, Donna Gracia decided to leave Portugal together with her only child Reyna and several other relatives. Though Gracia had to leave a considerable part of her huge wealth behind, she fled Portugal and settled in Antwerp, where her brother-in-law Diogo was the head of the branch of the Mendez-Nassi firm which had connections with most European courts.

She began to make plans to leave Antwerp for a free country. Suspecting that she planned to leave with her entire wealth, Emperor Charles V tried to seize her fortune. But Donna Gracia succeeded in leaving Antwerp in 1549 with her daughter, her windowed sister, her niece, and most of her wealth. Together they traveled to Venice, en route to Constantinople. The king of France, a willing tool of the church, was very angry at her slipping away from Antwerp, and for her taking most of her wealth before he could confiscate it. At his instigation, the governor of Venice put her and her family in prison, & confiscated her huge wealth before she could sail for Turkey. But then Don Joseph Nassi used his influence with the Turkish Sultan who was only too glad of an excuse to start trouble with the Church. After two years of negotiations and threats of actual war, Gracia was released, and, with her daughter, settled temporarily in Ferrara, where they finally shed their hated Catholic exterior and openly returned to Judaism.

In 1552, Gracia settled in Constantinople, where she became the center of worldwide help for Marranos and Jews in suffering. Her wealth was not only used for business, but to buy the favors of princes, opening many doors to the persecuted. She built synagogues, established Yeshivot and libraries, and supported scholars and students of Torah. She helped to resettle hundreds of Marranos, and enabled them to return to Judaism. She was the Esther of her time.
