

Ben Feil

Service Desk Technician

Ben is about to finish his Associates in Computer Information Systems at Portland Community College, but we're already putting him to work as our newest Service Desk Technician. He'll combine his passion and education to help our clients any way he can. For Ben, the most gratifying thing is constantly learning and growing, and getting to know people who are excited about technology.

Even though he's still in school, Ben is an A+ certified technician. He's currently working towards his Network+, and soaking up as much knowledge and experience as he can.

Ben fell in love with computers in high school, but it wasn't until he spent a year in Japan that he decided to pursue it professionally. In 2013 he signed up for the Rotary Club's long term exchange program. Shortly after that he found himself practicing Kendo and volunteering for a tsunami cleanup crew in Iseaki, where he took all the usual high school classes, but gained a new perspective on life and the wider world.

When he's not studying, Ben, and his high school sweetheart, are planning their future wedding. They're an outdoorsy couple, so it isn't ideal to be indoors tasting cake and designing invitations, but it is another new adventure that he gets to look forward to.
