

Jeff Berwick

Client Account Manager

Jeff came to Portland Internetworks in August from another IT consultancy, where he designed and implemented IT solutions for hundreds of businesses across Oregon and Southwest Washington. His thoughtful and practical approach to strengthening our client's IT infrastructure was built on a foundation of experience and a genuine desire to help businesses overcome their technological hurdles.

Jeff isn't just a great Account Manager. He's also a Chemistry Major, a former Chemical Engineer, a Farmer, a collector of oddities, and a genuinely down-to-earth guy. In his first few weeks at Portland Internetworks he was planning a camping trip with another coworker and handing out eggs from his farm.

Jeff's favorite Holiday is Memorial Day, "because it means summer is just around the corner." He loves to get his Vitamin D on the Deschutes River and spend hours combing Oregon's moss laden ridges and forests for volcanic glass. He even built his own disc golf course at home. If you do somehow manage to catch Jeff just sitting around, it's most likely with a copy of Game of Thrones in one hand and a cold Pale Ale in the other.

We're excited to see how Jeff's intrepid personality and scientific approach to problem solving improves our customer experience. He is an advocate for small business, an ally to those seeking better managed IT service, and—for these reasons and more—someone we hope that you'll want to get to know.
