

Reaching Out A Helping Hand

By Alex Bush

We're proud to be an Oregon-grown company, which is one of the reasons that our role of using technology to serve fellow local businesses is so gratifying for us. Our passion for supporting our community extends beyond the service desk and server room; we love being able to give back outside of the office, as well.

We strongly believe in providing value to everyone that we connect with, regardless of return. Crucial to embodying this value is affording our people the opportunity to flourish not only professionally, but personally. Through volunteer opportunities, we're able to aid in the advancement of our greater community, while simultaneously providing our team with a sense of comradery, humility, and fulfillment.

A few of our past initiatives include repairing trails with the Forest Park Conservancy, cleaning up Southeast Portland with SOLVE, and garden with Volunteers of America. Don't let the crisp blue shirts that we dawn during the work week fool you; we're not afraid to get a little dirty to lend a helping hand.

We're always looking for new ways to reciprocate the love that we've received from our community throughout the years. If you've been searching for a group of smiling faces to help contribute to a cause that you care about, look no further than your favorite IT Team in Blue! We may even surprise you with our coaching champions and floriculture fiends.

Drop us a line, and we'll work together to coordinate the details!
