

Ryan Mortinson

Service Desk Technician

Ryan started at Portland Internetworks in 2017 as a member of our Service Desk Team. He'll be the primary lifeline for our clients when their internet starts acting up or the color printer needs servicing unexpectedly—we're confident he's up to the task too. He wields a teacher's patience and unusually reassuring calmness, like a photographer setting up for the perfect shot. In fact, Ryan has honed many of his best attributes while traveling across South Korea, where he met his wife and spent a decade of his life teaching English to High School students. He credits the challenging process of everyday living in a foreign country with refining his natural problem-solving skills and opening his eyes to new ways of thinking.

Ryan graduated from George Fox University with a degree in Electrical Engineering in 2006, and even though his interests have taken him far and wide, he still hasn't lost any love for the Pacific Northwest. If you listen closely on a sunny summer day, you can hear Ryan buzzing around the Oregon Coast Range on his Suzuki SV650 or splitting firewood in a family sized campsite near Fish lake.
