What is the DC Arts and Humanities Education Collaborative?

The DC Collaborative was founded in 1998, by the DC Commission on the Arts and Humanities, The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, and Humanities Council of Washington DC along with DCPS and other local cultural institutions and funders.

Today, DC Collaborative members represent more than 100 cultural institutions and individual practitioners in the DC region working together to impact arts and humanities education in the District of Columbia.

What is the DC Arts and Humanities Education Collaborative?

Together, with its founders and members, the DC Arts and Humanities Education Collaborative created an Arts Education Continuum model in order to demonstrate our community of practice's three-pronged approach to arts education.

Arts Experiences: Students have an opportunity to observe performing arts, visual arts or humanities by artists, including community artists or teachers in the arts.

Arts Learning: Students receive instruction by artists and arts teachers to increase their skill in or knowledge of an art form.

Arts Integration: Students participate in instruction with objectives in an art form and another content area taught by artists, arts teachers and/or classroom teachers to enhance learning in both the art form and the other content area.

Collective Impact. Collaborative Effect.

The DC Collaborative is a proud partner of the DC Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

Our Collaborative.

As part of the arts and humanities education continuum, the DC Collaborative, together with partners and members, advocates and advances equitable access to high-quality learning experiences in the arts and humanities for all students and teachers in DC public and public charter schools.

Together, we lead:

- Collective Impact and Community Awareness
- Arts and Humanities for Every Student (AHFES)
- Professional Development Initiatives
- Professional Convenings and Networking for members and community stakeholders

Collective Impact. Collaborative Effect.

DC Collaborative Collective Impact: This year the DC Collaborative was awarded a $100,000 Collective Impact grant from the National Endowment for the Arts so that over the next 18 months, and serving as the “backbone support” convener, we have opportunity to bring our Collective Impact work to the forefront of our entire arts and humanities education community of practice and expand out to all stakeholders.

The DC Collaborative's Collective Impact work is supported in part by an award from the NEA.

DC Collaborative Effect: Connecting to Community- wide Cultural Planning:

- Working with adhoc group ArtsActionDC we advocate and promote increased support for arts and humanities education across agencies, including increased support for the DC Commission.
- Ensuring that Education plays a role in the Culture Plan that the District is developing in order to link to the District's future Comprehensive Plan

What is Arts and Humanities for Every Student?

Arts

for Every Student

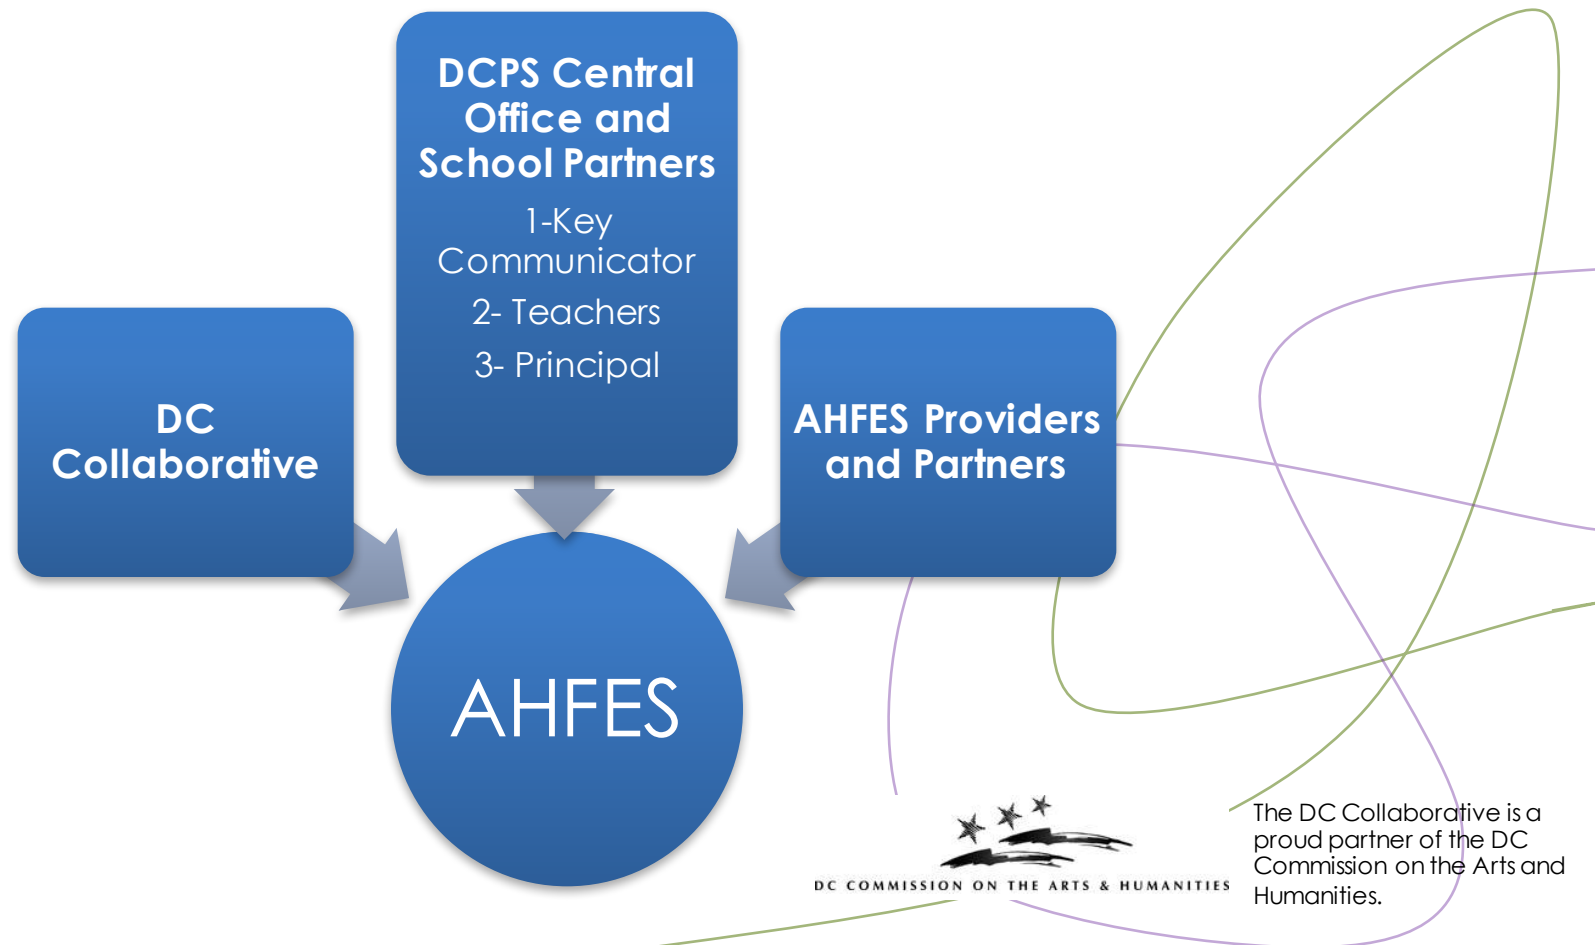

The DC Collaborative, in partnership with our members, advances equitable access to high-quality learning opportunities in the arts and humanities for all students in the DC public education system.

Arts and Humanities for Every Student (AHFES): is the DC Collaborative's legacy program that provides educational field-trips to high quality arts and cultural experiences offered by our partners and member providers.

Through this program, schools are eligible for tickets and transportation to local cultural events, and professional development opportunities for educators supported by the DC Collaborative through its partners and members.

Participants

It takes the participation from stakeholder groups across the community to make Arts and Humanities for Every Student a success!

Arts and Humanities for Every Student: Program Structure

Any DC Public or Public Charter School is eligible to register to participate in the program.

Once registered, each participating school may place their requests through the Online Lottery.

Schools will not be awarded more than one ticket per student enrolled.

Anne Beers Elementary

Arts and Humanities for Every Student: Program Structure

Each school is represented by a Key Communicator as the school's main contact for the AHFES Program. The Key Communicator requests tickets for each grade grouping for their AHFES experience using the Online Lottery.

This is a lottery-based system to ensure equitable access for students from all 8 wards of the District.

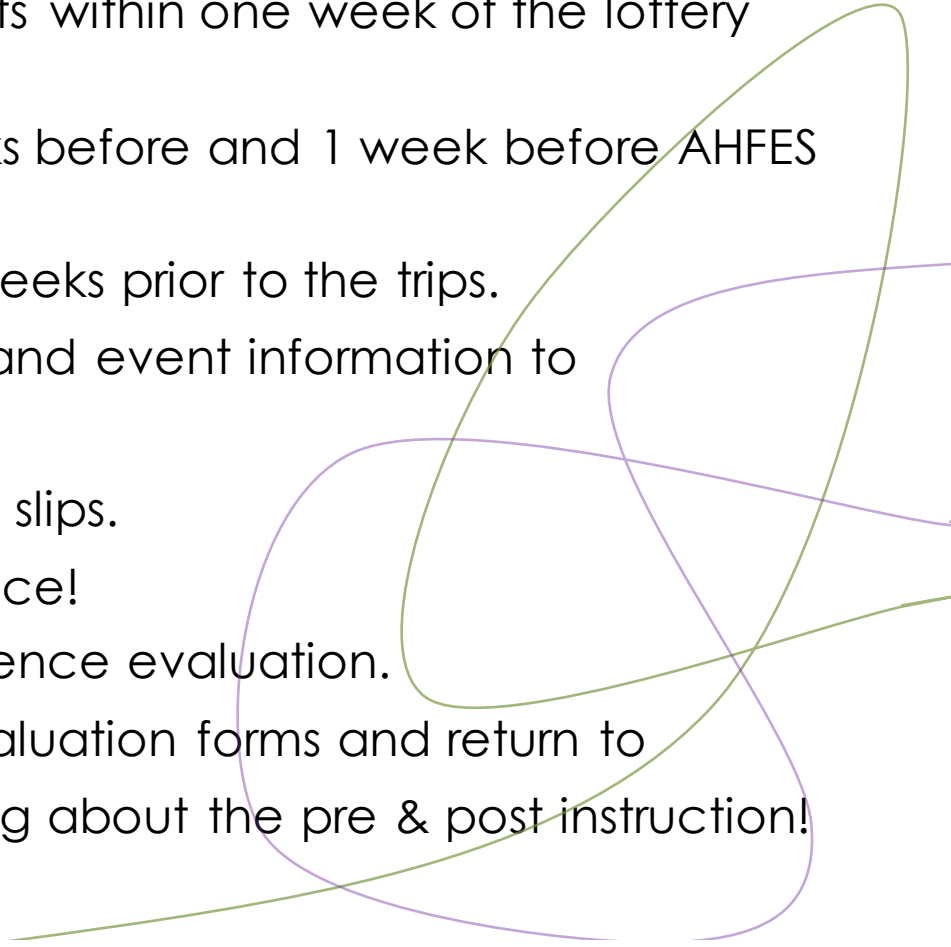

Amidon Bowen Elementary

Connections to Curriculum Standards

- AHFES experiences connect to the National Core Arts Standards, Common Core and DC State Standards in other content areas.
- Members are required to send materials to schools prior to the event that articulate links to arts standards and to additional content standards.
- Members are working to connect to the new DCPS Framework for Arts Learning.

During the School Year...

- ❑ Confirm your Key Communicator (School Partnership Agreement & AHFES Fee)
 - ❑ Coordinate event selections with colleagues and provide them to your Key Communicator.
 - ❑ Key Communicator selects events in AHFES Lottery System and receives confirmations and transportation assignments within one week of the lottery closing.
 - ❑ DC Collaborative sends reminders 4 weeks before and 1 week before AHFES experiences.
 - ❑ Members send prep materials at least 4 weeks prior to the trips.
 - ❑ Key Communicator relays transportation and event information to teacher chaperones.
 - ❑ Teachers distribute and collect permission slips.
 - ❑ Students and teachers enjoy the experience!
 - ❑ NEW! Students complete an AHFES experience evaluation.
 - ❑ Teachers complete AHFES experience evaluation forms and return to DC Collaborative office. We will be asking about the pre & post instruction!

How Do I Get There?

- ❑ Bus arranged by DC Collaborative
 - ❑ Buses are scheduled to arrive at your school one hour prior to the start of the event/performance time.
- ❑ Bus arranged by schools
- ❑ Metro rail
 - ❑ Grades 3 and up only
 - ❑ Metro Stop must be less than .3 miles away from your school and event location.
 - ❑ Extra Security from Metro Police
 - ❑ Students must be registered for their DC One Cards

Cancellation Policy

- ❑ How Do I Cancel a trip?
 - ❑ Trips must be cancelled IN WRITING via email at least 30 days prior to your trip.
 - ❑ Schools that cancel within this time window will be invoiced for costs incurred.
 - ❑ PDs must be cancelled 30 days in advance. If a teacher does not attend the PD without prior notification, they will be invoiced for the cost of the ticket.

Ticket Reduction Policy

- ❑ What if I have less students attend the event than requested?
 - ❑ Notify us IN WRITING of ticket reductions 30 days in advance.

Professional Development

The DC Collaborative also offers Members' Professional Development Workshops (PD). All DCPS and PCS teachers are eligible to attend three free PDs per year and receive certificates to apply for PLU credits.

Step 1:

Go to:

www.dccollaborative.org

The screenshot shows the homepage of the D.C. Arts & Humanities Education Collaborative (DCAHEC). The header features the organization's logo, a 'TEACHER LOGIN' link, a 'SHARE' button, and social media icons for Instagram, Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube. A search bar is also present. The main navigation menu includes links for 'ABOUT', 'PROGRAMS', 'MEMBERS', 'TEACHERS & SCHOOLS', 'NEWS & EVENTS', and 'GET INVOLVED'. A large banner image shows three smiling children in yellow shirts, with a caption 'photo description/image information' at the bottom right.

About DCAHEC
The D.C. Arts & Humanities Education Collaborative believes that the arts — inclusive of music, theater, dance, visual and literary arts — are central to the education of every student. The Collaborative works with its members to provide equitable access to quality arts and humanities education for all D.C. public and chartered public school students.

Our Programs
The DC Collaborative is host to three central programs: Arts for Every Student (AFES), Professional Development Initiatives (PD) and the Arts Education Initiative (AEI). Through these three programs, we are able to provide education and resources to students and teachers who would not otherwise have access.

Solutions
The DC Collaborative includes more than 70 member non-profit organizations, schools, and individuals. Together, our members serve thousands of students from the DC public and chartered public schools to provide access to dance, literary arts, music, visual arts, media arts, and other arts and humanities disciplines.
