

2018 AIA Dayton Architectural Scholarship Winners

Allison Trittschuh is a 2016 graduate of Oakwood High School and is currently attending Virginia Polytech Institute and State University in Blacksburg, Virginia, as a College of Architecture and Urban Studies major. She is an Architectural Intern at Earl Reeder Associates, doing computer drawings for renovations and additions and documenting construction information and code verification. She is also the Vice President and a member of the editorial team of Studio Collective, the official design journal of the School of Architecture + Design, and a member of the AIAS chapter. In her off time, she is a dancer with the Ballet Project at Virginia Tech, teaching and taking ballet and choreographing shows. Allison says that “After getting a bachelor’s degree in architecture with a focus in architectural history, I would love to work toward a master’s degree and potentially a PhD so that I can work as a professor.” Allison is spending the summer in Pittsburgh as an Architectural Intern.

Audra Menges is a 2018 graduate of Miamisburg High School with Honor’s Path college credits from Sinclair Community College and Wright State University. She will be attending Judson University in Elgin, Illinois, this fall pursuing a degree in architecture and playing on the university’s softball team.

While in high school, Audra was the newspaper photographer, played varsity softball, and was a member of Impact Girls Ministry, Elevate Youth Group and SWO Teen Bible Quizzing. Audra says “While my favorite method of design is drawing, I do enjoy putting my designs into three dimensional objects. I also love learning how to make art on a computer screen. Through high school, I have had many of my art pieces featured at art shows in my hometown.” Audra is currently in Florida with her family at a softball tournament.

Kemet Floyd is a graduate of Northmont High School and will be a fifth-year student at Kent State University in the College of Architecture and Environmental Design. He is working as a manager assistant at the Digital and Fabrication Lab, supervising students using woodshed materials and CNC cutter. He is a member of the National Organization for Minority Architecture Students and the National Society of Leadership and Success.

He was an architectural intern at Ware Malcolmb in 2017. Kemet says “Right now, in my college studies, I am learning how to develop good study habits and time management skills that will be needed in my graduate studies. I am hoping it will make my transition into a master’s program go smoothly.”

Allison, Audra and Kemet were awarded $4,000 in scholarship monies through the AIA Dayton Architectural Scholarship Foundation, made possible with a matching grant from AIA National.
