

WEEKLY UPDATE September 20, 2018

We received a few questions recently regarding the upcoming FMMO. Look up for questions for members and WUD's response in the next few weeks. As usual, if you have any questions please contact annie@westernuniteddairy-men.com or call the office.

Question: When we switch to the FMMO in November, what will happen to my quota if my milk is shipped out of state?

Answer: When our California state system goes away to make way for the Federal Milk Marketing Order (FMMO) in November, the Quota Implementation Plan (QIP) will be the language in place to ensure the quota system's smooth transition into the FMMO system. When we enter that new world, all market milk received from California producers at a California plant will be assessed for quota. By "received", the language defines "to convey milk physically into a milk plant where it is utilized within the plant, or stored within such milk plant and transferred to another plant for utilization". This means that a milk truck driver cannot drive by a plant, wave hello to an operator, and keep on going out of state and still call this milk received in California. Basically, if your California milk leaves the state, you will not be assessed for quota. But you also will not be paid for it. But, if your milk is 60% quota and only 40% of your milk goes out of state, you will be assessed on 60% of your milk and get paid quota on that same 60%. If your quota covers 100% of your milk and 40% of your milk goes out of state you will be assessed on 60% of your milk and get paid quota on that same 60%. In this instance, one could wonder if it makes much sense to keep your quota. While it may not make much economic sense to hold on to quota you are not paid for, some reasons may validate that decision (perhaps it is expected milk will be shipped to a California plant in the near future). If you were to decide to hold on to that quota, it is important to keep in mind that "if quota is not made active by shipments of market milk to a California plant or cooperative association or is not transferred within the 60-day period, such quota shall revert to the Department". This excerpt from the QIP means that if your quota milk is not paid on for over 60 days, you will lose it so you better sell it. This is likely going to be an issue if you ship to a proprietary plant and all your milk goes out of state. If you ship milk to a cooperative, there is more flexibility because that coop has the ability to combine quotas assigned to it by its members. So as long as the quota total within the coop is not larger than the total amount of market milk produced and received in California, then there should be no issue for you as a quota holder.

Question: what is defined as market milk?

Answer: Grade A milk. If your milk is Grade B, you cannot have quota now and will not be able to under the QIP. You will not be assessed for it either. Currently, only around 3% of the milk in California is Grade B. WUD will keep an eye out on this topic to ensure that percentage does not deviate significantly. As a reassurance, this is not something that could grow from 3% to 50% in a month since fluid milk is not allowed to take in Grade B milk and the three largest coops in the state (CDI, DFA and LOL) committed to not taking in any more Grade B milk after the transition to the FMMO.

August 2018 Milk Production report

USDA released its Milk production report this week, pointing to results as unexpected as a celebrity tweeting about trying cereal with milk for the first time. The report showed slightly higher than expected milk volumes in August, with U.S. milk production up 1.4% year-over-year, pushed upward by significant increases in some of the major dairy producing states. Texas led the way with a 9.5% year-over-year jump. New York and Wisconsin were up 1.7% and 1.4% respectively, while California was up 1.2% and Idaho 0.9%. This marked the highest August volume for California since August of 2015. Texas monthly gain of nearly one hundred million pounds was the equivalent of the volume gains incurred by California, Wisconsin and New York combined. New York, Wisconsin and California all trimmed the herd compared to last year—in line with expectations shown in increased slaughter numbers last month. Some top states did not follow the trend, with Idaho adding 4,000 cows and Texas adding 20,000 cows.

North Valley Field Representative

Greetings from the great central valley in the great State of California! We're in the middle of the last dog days of summer, thank God there has been enough irrigation water to get our crops to maturity. WUD is currently ramping up our efforts to help dairy families prepare for what we expect to be increased OSHA audits and visits. We've just conducted two OSHA update meetings for our members and we plan to hold more in the coming months. The new information is now located on the member portal, be sure and check it out. An ounce of prevention is better than a fine from OSHA.

There are lots of WUD events and dates coming up. Write them on your calendar or smart device as you read about them in your Update. The WUD leadership nomination and election process started Monday September 17th. Nominations for Directors and Delegates are due OCTOBER 26th. WUD is also hosting a dairy risk academy in Visalia on September 25th and in Turlock on September 26th. Please RSVP to the office if you'd like to attend. Annie will be making her presence known at both meetings so if you'd like to talk dairy pricing Canuck style, be sure and attend!

Winter district membership meetings start right after Thanksgiving this year. All your WUD staff will be there to show off what your trade group has been working on. And the granddaddy of all events will be WUD's annual convention held at Tenaya Lodge in Yosemite, on March 27th-29th, 2019. Mark your calendars and watch your Update for registration information. Make plans to attend as this event will sell out early at the Lodge.

Have you seriously considered an AMMP funded project on your dairy? You might have to think outside the box. If you have aging infrastructure now is the time to upgrade. There might be new technologies to reduce your methane emissions. If you have any questions about which projects are qualifying—or ways to think outside the box—please contact Paul Sousa sooner versus later.

Be sure you enjoy the joys of family at your Thanksgiving dinner and the blessings of the Advent season at Christmas.

California Dairy
Sustainability
Summit

November 27–28, 2018
Sacramento Convention Center

$50 REGISTRATION
for Dairy Farmers thru Friday, Oct. 19th

Hosted by:

Look for the Seal

California Milk Advisory Board

Join us to learn about California's world-leading achievements in sustainable dairy farm practices and ways for dairy farmers to continue improving environmental sustainability, develop new business opportunities, and reduce on-farm costs.

Address Challenges and Improve your Bottom Line: The summit will serve as a forum for discussing technologies and strategies to address methane emission challenges, fast approaching water regulations, and rising labor and energy costs, all while optimizing cow health and comfort.

Food and Fun: Sacramento—America's Farm-to-Fork Capital—has more than 50 craft breweries and 200 wineries, award-winning restaurants, boutique shops, riverfront views, and historic attractions.

"As farmers, our leadership in sustainability is a legacy we leave to future generations. The California Dairy Sustainability Summit allows us to recognize farmers for leading the way with sustainability, while investigating further opportunities to advance and improve."

Dante Migliazzo

Chairman, California Milk Advisory Board
Director, California Dairy Research Foundation

"California dairy farmers are raising the bar for environmentally-friendly farming practices. The Summit will recognize their achievements to date and help build strong partnerships, as we serve as world leaders in sustainable farming."
