About Trent Severn

Trent Severn is an acclaimed Ontario folk trio who sing original, contemporary songs easily described as “Canadian history in harmony.” Topically modern with a humorous twist, Trent Severn have inspired audiences all over Canada to share a patriotic laugh.

Named after a famous Ontario waterway, Trent Severn was founded on a creative kinship between well-established Stratford, Ontario-area musicians/songwriters Emm Gryner and Dayna Manning, who came together out of a shared desire to work with one another and their common affinity for all that makes Canada special. Accomplished fiddle player Lindsay Schindler joined the group full time in 2015, replacing the equally adept Laura C. Bates. The group has been twice nominated for Canadian Folk Music Awards.

Continuing the poetic legacy of true “red and white” pioneering troubadours such as Stompin’ Tom Connors, Ian and Sylvia Tyson and Gordon Lightfoot, the talented trio planted their Maple Leaf flag deeply in the firmament of the Canadian roots music scene with the release of their self-titled debut album in 2012. Through regular touring in communities of all sizes, they continue to win over fans from coast to coast with their bracingly authentic acoustic-based, story-centred brand of music.
