Field trips to close the achievement gap between white and black students in the Madison Metropolitan School District have been consistent in recent years, and a new report suggests that the problem is getting worse.

In the field's annual report card, the Madison chapter of the NAACP noted that despite some recent gains during the last four years, there could be no return on the time and money added by NAACP. The NAACP also noted a lack of improvement and questioned how that could be. The NAACP also noted a lack of improvement and questioned how that could be.
