

William Restrepo serves as Chief Financial Officer of Nabors. In this role, Restrepo has oversight for global finance and accounting as well as the treasury, tax, risk management and internal audit groups. He also works closely on Nabors' corporate development and investor relations initiatives.

Restrepo has an extensive portfolio of proven domestic and international capabilities in corporate finance, financial accounting, internal audit, tax, operations, and mergers and acquisitions, as well as planning and analysis.

Prior to joining Nabors in March 2014, Restrepo served as CFO at Pacific Drilling. He also previously served as CFO at Seitel and at Smith International until its acquisition by Schlumberger. Prior to that, Restrepo spent 20 years with Schlumberger in various senior financial and operational positions, including operational responsibility for all product lines in the Continental Europe and the Arabian Gulf markets, as well as senior financial executive roles in Corporate Treasury and worldwide controller positions with international postings in Europe, South America and Asia.

Restrepo holds bachelor's degrees in economics and civil engineering, respectively, from Cornell University and the University of Miami. He also earned an MBA from Cornell University.