

Are You Really My Friend?

By Raquel Castaneda

Everyone wants and needs friends, but sometimes it can be a little hard to tell when someone is really your friend or not. Just because a person calls themselves your friend, does not always mean that they truly are. If a person says they're your friend but treats you badly, hurts your feelings, or tries to make you do things you do not want to do then they are not a true friend. This is called being a fake friend. A fake friend is someone who is not really your friend. A true friend is selfless and would never treat a real friend so badly.

It is important for you to stand up for yourself and find help if you think someone is a fake friend. There are people all around you who care about and want the best for you. You need to remember that you do not have to put up with fake friends.

So, how can you tell the difference between a real friend and a fake one? I'd like to teach you by sharing some pointers and tips I learned so you will be able to tell the difference too. I will be presenting a live webinar called, "Are You Really My Friend" on Monday, May 8th, from 7:00 pm to 8:00 pm. You can register for the webinar by using the following link: <http://tinyurl.com/jxqlaob>

Changing Lives Every Day