

Related Services

By Shanida Mathieu

Most people are familiar with Speech and Language Therapy, Occupational Therapy, Physical Therapy and Transportation as the only Related Services provided to some children with disabilities to help them meet the goals in their Individualized Education Program (IEP). However, related services are not just limited to those mentioned above.

Related services help children with disabilities benefit from their special education by providing extra help and support in needed areas, such as speaking or moving and can include, but are not limited to, any of the following; just to name a few:

- early identification and assessment of disabilities in children
- counseling services, including rehabilitation counseling
- orientation and mobility services and
- medical services for diagnostic or evaluation purposes

The following training will provide a closer look at the non-exhaustive list of a few supplementary aids and services which children may benefit based on an individual need. A child's Individualized Education Program (IEP) team decides which related services are necessary and the delivery of services. Participants will gain an understanding of service delivery options by school personnel with a list of frequently asked questions by parents.

Related Services: Children with disabilities are entitled to special education and related services. The IEP must contain a statement of the special education, related services and supplementary aids and services to be provided to the child, or on behalf of the child. Participants will learn several critical elements used to determine what related services a student needs.
