

Creating New Connections, LLC (CNC) in partnership with Katradi presents:

Autism Spectrum Disorder Parent Workshop

Saturday, April 22, 2017

8:30 – 11:30 am

First Grace United Methodist Church
3401 Canal St, New Orleans, LA 70119

Creating New Connections, LLC is an ABA (Applied Behavior Analysis) provider that provides therapy and parent education for individuals with Autism Spectrum Disorders and their families.

Katradi is an international initiative that has worked across 30 countries and 5 continents with a range of communities using a unique method based on empathy as a trigger for personal and social transformation.

Do these questions resonate with you and your family life?

- Are you unsure about the decisions you are making for your child?
- Do you feel like your child deserves to be better understood or appreciated?
- Feeling unsure about what advice to take?

Using creative movement and theater to create spaces of high energy and positivity, this workshop will focus on:

- Trust building to create a strong, supportive group
- Identifying and releasing negative emotion
- Sharing challenges parents face at home and in the community in order to identify commonalities
- Assess skills and coping strategies to honestly locate areas of improvement

Facilitator Bios:

Sangeeta Isvaran: Sangeeta is an award-winning facilitator who developed the Katradi method, building programs in communities across the world using the arts in education, empowerment and conflict resolution.

Christine Tilley: Christine is the Owner/Director of Creating New Connections. She is a Board Certified Behavior Analyst and has over 17 years of experience working with individuals with Autism Spectrum Disorders and their families.
