

Lutheran School Ministry

Serving in Lutheran schools is one of the noblest professions in the world. The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod educates children in early childhood programs through grade 12 in more than 2,000 schools worldwide. Through a Christ-centered, religiously integrated curriculum, Lutheran schools offer a holistic education that provides outstanding academic preparation built upon a faith foundation impacting lives for eternity.

At Concordia University, Nebraska, we're steadfast in our mission to equip students for lives of learning, service and leadership in the church and world. In fact, we lead the LCMS with over 20 percent of current rostered Church Workers prepared by us. However, our Lutheran schools have an even larger need for teachers and administrators than all the Concordia universities can provide. Seeing this need, Concordia Nebraska is proud to introduce the Lutheran School Ministry program.

The Lutheran School Ministry program is primarily designed for the non-Lutheran working educators in our Lutheran schools who desire additional training to incorporate the Lutheran ethos into their classrooms. The program provides practical instruction on what makes a Lutheran school truly distinctive.

Beginning in January 2018, four, 8-week modules will be offered online. All four modules are required to complete the Lutheran School Ministry training. Tuition per individual is $600 per module or $2,000 for the entire program.
