Enhance your professional development by viewing an on-demand webinar covering best practices for improving reading, writing and literacy skills.

Cultural Relevance and Academic Equity in the Age of ESSA presented by Almitra Berry-Jones in partnership with EdWeb.

In this edWebinar, Dr. Berry-Jones will explore what culture means for students, including their relationships to home, peers, and school. She will take on questions of equality and equity in American public schools, looking at the history of educational (in)equality and both the origin and pervasive nature of achievement gaps.

Improving Literacy Through Summer Learning presented by Kevin Baird

The “Summer Slide” is real. Research indicates that most students lose reading proficiency during the summer recess, with students from low-income households losing several months of academic growth. In this research-driven presentation, we look at ways students have actually gained literacy skills during summer break.
