In compliance with new MDAR rules, all registrants must abide by the following rules while attending the training seminar:

Applicators receiving credit must sit and be present through the entirety of the NEPMA training in order to obtain the CEUs that are being offered. The applicator may NOT partake in any activities that would distract or otherwise draw attention away from the training. This includes but is not limited to the following and could result in no credits being awarded:

- Taking or making phone calls (if you get up & leave to take a call = no credits)
- Using phones for anything that is not related to the class that is being provided (such as texting or any gaming)
- Coming in late or leaving early (plan accordingly, once the seminar starts you are officially late. Even 1 minute could jeopardize credits)
- Being disruptive (includes dozing off & talking unrelated to the instruction)
- It is your responsibility to retain and protect your MDAR attendance certificate. NEPMA is no longer able to provide duplicate certificates and you will need them for any future audits.
