7:00 am, 9:00 am – 4:00 pm

Fort Toulouse-Fort Jackson Park, Wetumpka, Alabama

Join experienced bird walk leaders who will help you explore the varied habitat in and around Fort Toulouse-Fort Jackson Park. The rich riparian habitat makes this especially attractive to birds (click here to learn more about the park's habitat). Don't forget to bring your binoculars!

Fort Toulouse-Jackson National Historic Park is situated where the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers meet to form the headwaters of the Alabama River. The park preserves relics of over 6,000 years of human history within its 165 acres of woodlands and fields bordering the two rivers.

Immediately following the Fall Bird Walk a new birding trail sign will be unveiled at Fort Toulouse. The sign, provided by the Alabama Birding Trails and their partners, highlights the park's bird habitat and maps out the Piedmont Plateau Birding Trail region.

Beginning at 9:00 am visitors will have an opportunity to experience French-colonial Alabama. Re-enactors will bring history to life and demonstrate what life was like for French marines as well as the Creek people who lived near Fort Toulouse in 1755.

Admission to the park is $2 for adults and $1 for school-age children.
